NOTE BY THE COMPILER.

THIS RECORD was undertaken by request of a joint Committee of Trustees and Alumni, appointed, Aug. 10th, 1869, to make arrangements for a Celebration of the SEMI-CENTENNIAL of the College, to be held Aug. 2d, 1870. In the following pages will be found notices of all graduates, one hundred and twenty-eight in number, who are known to have died. Each notice is a summary, so far as materials furnished have allowed, of the chief facts and dates of a life. As a Necrology, covering any long period of years, must be of interest for reference rather than for continuous reading, it has been thought best to put the matter of it under such form and arrangement as would most promote facility of reference. In short, the thing has been made a literal Record, and each entry reduced to brief terms, and so disposed as most readily to catch the eye.

The task of gathering materials—tedious and difficult to the last degree,—though early begun, and incessantly urged with the aid of earnest helpers, has been completed only at the last moment, and with great effort. It has involved not only provision for the cases of persons known to be deceased, but also the tracing out of several members of classes graduated prior to 1832, from whom nothing had been heard for many years. Two of these,—the hardest of all to trace,—have been found living, and full accounts of their lives obtained; the rest are dead, and their obituaries are here presented. If any unknown instances of decease exist, they must be those of individuals who have been very recently living. A few such may have occurred. The Necrology of Graduates of the College may be regarded then, as wholly, or nearly, complete up to the present time. If it be kept hereafter from falling into arrears, more accurate registry of lives will be assured for the future, and with a saving of the dreary labor required by that of the first fifty years.

Had it been possible to give more time to the final writing out of the notices,—which has been rapid from necessity,—the compiler would gladly have bestowed more care upon phraseology and forms of expression; but, fortunately, in abbreviated sentences, such as fill these pages, the demands of style are reduced to a minimum.

In the earlier pages, some things have been introduced, not so much as being specially pertinent to the lives there recorded, as for the sake of bringing together and preserving dates and reminiscences relating to the first years of the College. Great care has been taken to insure accuracy of dates, but, among so many, it is not to be supposed that all are correct. The legal residence of every person, during his college life, has been noted, chiefly because one of the questions, sure to be asked about a college man, is: "Where was he from?"

Thanks are due, and are hereby tendered, to all friends who have assisted in collecting the materials for this Record. Among these, first and foremost to be named, are Mr. Larkin Dunton and Rev. James Upham, D. D., also Professor Wm. Mathews and Rev. H. V. Dexter, of the Committee on Necrology, and Messrs. Charles Morrill, Benj. O. Peirce, A. D. Small, and G. S. Scamman, as well as Rev. E. E. Cummings, D. D., and Rev. I. S. Hamblen. Of gentlemen who are not Alumni, Messrs. Loveland Munson, of Manchester, Vt., Wm. H. Fuller, of Suffield, Conn., and Dan'l H. Mason, student of Brown University, have rendered invaluable aid, which is here gratefully acknowledged. Professor J. B. Foster has kindly assisted by careful reading of the proof, and if, after the pages have passed under his trained and critical eye, and that of the expert proof-reader at Lewiston, errors of the press still remain, they must, it would seem, be few in number.

Married, Feb. 19, 1827, Miss Evelina Bacon, of Waterville, who, with five of their seven children, survives.

[An excellent scholar, and, to the last, an enthusiastic teacher. As a man, remarkably modest, amiable, conscientious and pious.]

HADLEY PROCTER.

His parents were from England. The father's given name is not remembered. The mother's maiden name was Mary Cowell. She is represented as a highly educated woman. The father died when the son was 12, the mother, when he was 16 years of age.

[The foregoing statement is given on what would seem to be the best authority now accessible; but, on the other hand, a family intimately associated with Mr. Procter, during his residence in China, quote him as saying, substantially: "That he never learned anything respecting his own earliest history, and never knew a relative." Still other reports have come in, all partaking of mystery, and some, of romance.]

Born, Apr. 4 (?), 1794, probably in Boston, or vicinity.

Early residence, for some years, at Newton, Mass., where he united with Baptist church, May 5, 1811; dismissed, June 21, 1818.

1817. For a time, pupil of Rev. Dan'l Merrill [D. C., 1789], at Nottingham-West (now Hudson), N. H., expenses defrayed by Newton church.

1818, July. Near first of month, Dr. Chaplin came from Danvers, Mass., with his family and class of Theological students. Mr. Procter was one of this class (the only one of the original number who took the college course), and of the company who came up the river in "the long boat that brought the College to Waterville."

Aug. 27. One of twenty persons (Dr. C. and wife, five of the Theol. class, and thirteen citizens) who, at this date, united to form the First Baptist Church in Waterville.

1822-23, Senior year. Principal of Acad., and preacher to church in China, Me.

1823, Fall. Ordained pastor of Baptist church in China, and as such, and as Principal of Academy, served three years (four from beginning of Senior year.)

1826-35. Pastor in Rutland, Vt. During this period the church was greatly enlarged and strengthened.

1835-36. Principal of Vermont Literary and Scientific Institution, at Brandon, by special solicitation.

1836-38. Resumed and held pastorate at Rutland.

1838-42. Pastor, a second time, in China, a part of this period.

Died, Apr. 12, 1842, in China, of asthma, from which he had suffered many years.

Married, Jan., 1824, to Mrs. Dorcas, widow of Dr. Nathaniel Seaver, of Vassalboro', Me. She is now living at Knoxville, Illinois.

He left no children.

[Mr. Procter was regarded as a man of decided ability, both as a preacher and instructor. His name was written by himself Procter, and is so printed in the first Triennial, published 1825].

CLASS OF 1824.

JOEL PEREZ HAYFORD.

Son of John, Jr., and Joanna () Hayford.

Born, Feb. 28, 1799, in Middleboro', Mass. (partnow Lakeville).

Prepared for college at Peirce Academy, Middleboro'.

1819-20, at Maine Literary and Theological Institution.

1819, Sept. 16. Admitted by letter from Baptist church in Braintree, Vt., to membership in church at Waterville; and, Nov. 20, licensed to preach by same.

Legal residence, while at Waterville, Brattleboro', Vt.

1825. Selected by Baptist Board of Foreign Missions, to establish a Missionary Station in Africa.

Nov. 30. Ordained as an Evangelist, at Beverly, Mass., at same time with Francis Green Macomber, class of 1825.

1826, Jan. Sailed from Boston, for Liberia, in brig Vine, in company with Mr. Sessions, agent of Colonization Society, Mr. Force, printer, and 32 colored emigrants from Rhode Island. Arrived in Liberia in 34 days, March 22. Brought low with fever, from which he recovered.

Died, July 23, 1826, of climatic fever, at Monrovia, Liberia.

Not married.

[By his zeal and devotion he gave promise of great usefulness as a missionary.]

EBENEZER HUTCHINSON.

Son of Joseph and Anna (Whittier) Hutchinson.

Born, Apr., 1794, in Readfield, Me., where he was a school-mate of Gov. Hubbard. For a time pupil of Mr. Mead, Principal of Hallowell Academy.

At about age of 20, went to Farmington, soon married, engaged in farming, taught public schools, became Colonel of militia, and was a hard student.

After death of wife, studied law with Nathan Cutler (D. C., 1798), of Farmington, and at same time prosecuted, by himself, the studies of the college course.

1824, Aug. 3. Having passed a rigorous examination on the studies of the whole course, he was admitted to the graduating class, and performed a part in the exercises of the third commencement, August 25th.

1824-29. Immediately after graduating was admitted to the bar, entered partnership with Milford P. Norton, and practiced his profession in Waterville five years.

1827, Aug. 29. Delivered Oration for Master's Degree, at commencement.

1829. Removed to Athens, where he resided till his decease. He was possessed of a powerful and judicial mind, and was one of the ablest lawyers of the Somerset bar.

1827-30. Secretary of State Senate, out of compliment to his "elegant chirography." County Attorney for Somerset County, for many years. Member of State Legislature at various times.

Died, May 19, 1862, at Athens, from "gradual breaking down of system, terminating in dropsy and disease of heart."

Married, 1815 (about), Miss Mary Maddox, of Farmington, who died about 1821. 1832, Miss Sabrina, daughter of Lemuel Williams, of Athens. She died Jan., 1840.

1840, Oct. 28, Mrs. Lois W. Bishop, of Harmony, now living at Athens. Children, who survived him:

Henry W., of Minnesota.

Ellen T., wife of Asa C. Emery, of Athens.

Col. Eben, a meritorious officer in the late war, now a successful lawyer in Boston.

Emma A., wife of John P. Hamblett, of Boston.

CLASS OF 1825.

WILLARD GLOVER.

Son of James and Mary (Hill) Glover.

Born, July 29, 1796, in Vinalhaven (part now North Haven), Me.

Studied in native town till qualified to teach.

1816. Attended Framingham (Mass.) Academy, Rev. Chas. Train (H. U., 1805), Principal.

1820-21. Completed preparatory course in college "Grammar School."

1825-27. Preached at Machias, Me. Not yet ordained.

1827-29. Pastor at Limerick, Me., preaching occasionally at Acton, in 1828.

1829-32. Supply in Parsonsfield, Buxton, Waterboro' and Paris.

1855-60. " Addison, " " " " " "

1860. Pastor of a church in Deer Isle, Me.

1861-66. Residence, Belfast, Me. Preached and taught in various places.

Died, Sept. 18, 1866, of chronic heart disease, at Jonesport, Me., while on visit to a daughter.

Married, July 21, 1831, Miss Emeline B. Packard, of Union, Me., who, with five daughters, survives. Widow lives in Waterville.

ALONZO KING.

Son of Luther and Abigail A. King.

Born, Apr. 1st, 1796, in Wilbraham, Mass.

1800. Family removed to Newport, N. H., which was his legal residence while in college.

Pursued preparatory studies at Newport Academy, and in the family, and under the tuition of Rev. Leland Howard, of Windsor, Vt.

1825, Aug. Invited to pastorate of Baptist church in North Yarmouth (now Yarmouth), Me., which had remained vacant since removal of Rev. Stephen Chapin, D. D. (H. U., 1804), to Waterville, spring of 1823.

1826, Jan. 24. Ordained at North Yarmouth, where he labored with great success till failure of health compelled him, spring of 1831, to lay aside for a time pastoral duties.

1832, May. Became pastor of church in Northboro', Mass.

1834, March. Published his "Memoir of George Dana Boardman."

During residence in Northboro', he was for a time agent of Baptist Convention of Mass.; and was appointed to raise an endowment for Newton Theological Institution. In several instances, invited to charge of churches in cities and large towns, his modest estimate of himself caused him to decline the offers.

1835, Spring. Removed to Westboro', Mass., and entered upon his third and last settlement.

Died, Nov. 29, 1835, at Westboro', of consumption.

Married, 1827, Tryphena, daughter of Wm. Cheney, of Newport, N. H. She, with several children, survived him.

"In my own memory, and in that of every one who knew him, his name is fragrant." [Baron Stow.

[Accounts of his life, character and labors may be found in Sprague's Annals Am. Pulpit, vol. vi., and in a Discourse on the "Origin and Progress of the Baptist Church in Yarmouth;" by Rev. T. B. Ripley, 1861.]

FRANCIS GREEN MACOMBER.

Son of Zebedee and Patty (Smith) Macomber.

Born, Aug. 30, 1797, at Waltham, Mass., which was his legal residence through the college course.

Having unusual powers as a speaker, he preached much while a student, and, some months before graduation, received a call to pastorate of Baptist church in Beverly, Mass.

1825, Nov. 30. Ordained as pastor at Beverly; sermon by Rev. Jos. Grafton, of Newton.

1826, Oct. Suffering from hemorrhage of lungs, he sailed for the South, and remained, till Apr. following, in So. Carolina, chiefly on Edisto Island, where, and at Charleston, he was received with great hospitality. Elijah Foster (class of 1823), who, at his request, had supplied the church in summer of 1825, took his place while he was absent. He returned with health somewhat improved.

Died, July 1st, 1827, suddenly, of putrid fever.

Married, 1825, Miss Sophia Foley, of Newton, who, with an infant daughter, survived him.

The widow died, May 15, 1860.

The daughter became a teacher in New Hampton Institution, and died of brain fever, at Worcester, Oct. 8, 1855.

"His ministry was one of uncommon achievements, in respect to the public favor gained, and the good accomplished. * * * In all his labors he was intensely earnest, and he had remarkable power to engage the attention and thrill the heart. * * * His short career was singularly brilliant and successful." [Rev. J. C. F.

"He possessed an ardent spirit, an affectionate heart, a devout mind, and a winning manner. He was intensely absorbed in the duties of his holy calling, and his whole soul inspired the glowing and persuasive eloquence of his lips. Universally beloved, his death was lamented with no ordinary emotions and utterances of grief."—[Hist. Bev. ch. in Min. Salem Assoc., 1857.

HENRY MOOR.

Son of Daniel and Rebecca (Spring) Moor.

Born, Feb. 17, 1807, in Waterville, his residence during College course.

- 1827 (part of year). Principal of Maine Wesleyan Seminary, Kent's Hill.
 Began legal studies with Nathan Cutler, (D. C., 1798), of Farmington, Me., and completed them at private Law School, then in high repute, of Judge Wm. Howe (D. C., 1794) and John H. Ashman (H. U., 1818), at Northampton, Mass.
1828. Admitted to bar, at Augusta.
 Practiced about six months at Farmington, in company with Hon. Hiram Belcher.
 Fall of same year, removed to Phillips, where he continued in practice till 1840, June, when he returned to Farmington, and there practiced his profession.
 1847, March. Being in poor health, he removed to Dixfield, that he might associate himself with his brother Isaac (B. C., 1836), then a lawyer there.
- Died, Nov. 12, 1848, at Dixfield, of heart disease of long standing.
- Married, May, 1830, Fanny Stacy, of Wilton, who, after his death, married Henry A. Brooks, of Farmington, now of Hallowell.
- Children, who survived him: three sons and two daughters.
 [Successful in business, accumulating a handsome property.]

ARTHUR THOMPSON.

- Son of Edward and Sophia (Pote) Thompson.

 1825, Spring. Entered Waterville College, and graduated with class, Aug. 31, being the first college graduate from Pownal.
- After graduation, taught schools in Maryland, North Carolina and Georgia for many years.
1843. Returned from south to his father's house in Pownal, broken down by southern fevers, and for last ten years of life was a confirmed invalid.
- Died, Dec. , 1853, at Pownal, of pulmonary consumption.
- Did not marry.

CLASS OF 1826.

SAMUEL FARRAR.

- Son of Jonathan and Hannah (Cram) Farrar.
 Born, Dec. 28, 1805, at Portsmouth, N. H.
1811. The father, a successful and enterprising merchant, in prospect of the war with England, left Portsmouth, for the east, opened a store in Bloomfield, Me., and removed his family thither. In 1816, he established himself in trade at Dexter, to which place he took his family in 1818, and there resided till his death in 1838. Business at Bloomfield conducted by an agent, till the elder son, Isaac, became of age, in 1821, when he was made partner of the firm of Jona. Farrar & Son, and head of the establishment at Bloomfield.
1821. Samuel, having been fitted at Bloomfield Academy, under Preceptor
 Hall, entered Bowdoin College, where he studied for about three years.
1825. Joined the Senior class of Waterville College.
 After graduating, he studied law a short time with Reuel and Daniel Williams, of Augusta, and for about two years pursued legal and literary studies in Philadelphia.
1829. Health being infirm, he was prevailed upon by his friends to relinquish the Law, and was not admitted to practice. Became member of firm of Jona. Farrar & Sons, and, with his brother Isaac, carried on at Bloomfield a large and prosperous business in trade and lumbering.

1834. The firm was dissolved. Samuel received, for his share, $100,000, and the sons removed to Bangor.
1838. The death of the father left his manufacturing property (Woolen Factory and Tannery), in Dexter, without a manager. Quitting the life of studious retirement that was dear to him, Mr. Farrar reluctantly assumed charge of the business at Dexter, and, after a time, associated with himself Lysander Cutler, the concern taking the title of Farrar & Cutler. His residence was still in Bangor.
- 1844-57. President of Mercantile Bank, Bangor.
- 1856, Dec. Reverses having swept away his property, the business at Dexter was closed.
- 1857, June. Removed to Milwaukee, Wis., to fill the offices of Secretary and Treasurer of a Railway company.
- 1862, Spring. Removed to Geneva, Wis., where he engaged in the manufacture of flour.
- Died, Dec. 6th, 1862, very suddenly, at Geneva.
- Married, Aug. 17th, 1831, at Bloomfield, to Miss Sarah Herrick, daughter of Dr. John Putnam, of Wilton, N. H.
- He left no children. His widow now lives in Dexter.
- [All accounts agree in representing Mr. Farrar as a high-minded and honorable man, of the kindest and most benevolent disposition,—studious, thoughtful and conscientious. The life of a student was his delight. He was possessor of a fine library, and it has been said that his “was the best private collection of classical works in the State.”]

MOSES GOULD.

Son of Moses and Anne (Mecum) Gould.

Converted, and united with Baptist ch. in New Hampton.

1829. Entered college, with medical profession in view. During course, licensed to preach by ch. in Waterville.

1833. After leaving college, went to Virginia and began medical studies, which he completed in Warsaw, Ky.

1835. Having prepared to remove to Missouri and settle in practice, he reversed his decision and was soon after ordained as an evangelist.

1835-38. Pastor of Bap. ch. in Shelbyville, Ky.

1838, Fall. Chosen President of Georgetown College, Ky. During next eight months, as agent of the college, he travelled to secure an endowment, preaching wherever he went. At length, "after preaching every day for nearly two weeks, at Long Run Church, and baptizing a large number of converts, he sank in the pulpit in the midst of his sermon," and without rallying, steadily declined.

Died, Oct. 29, 1839, of fever.

Married, July 24, 1838, Miss Mary, dau. of Joel Hansborough, of Shelby County. She died in less than a year from date of marriage.

"His talents were of the highest order, and, had he lived, he would have ranked with the giant intellects of the age. * * * He filled every station to which he was called with an ability that astonished his most ardent admirers."—[Dr. J. S. Waller.

[The foregoing is chiefly condensed from an article in "Sprague's Annals Am. Pulpit," vol. vi., by Prof. J. E. Farnam (class of 1833) of Georgetown Coll.]

A younger brother, William Franklin, born Nov. 18, 1826, entered college in 1844. At close of fall term, Senior year, went home to N. H. for the vacation, but was unable to return, and died, Apr. 30, 1848, of consumption, at his father's in Compton.

From boyhood to close of life, a devoted student of the ancient classics.

1834-37. Student of Newton Theological Institution, completing course, except last term of Senior year.

1837, May 24. Ordained as pastor of Baptist Church, in North Yarmouth, Me. Here he labored, for seven years, with the highest success, and enjoyed the ever increasing regard of his people. Suffering in health from the severity of the Maine winters, he was compelled, July, 1844, to resign his charge.

1844, Nov. Installed as pastor of Pine Street Baptist Church, in Providence, R. I., and greatly beloved and respected, sustained this relation till it ceased with his life.

1848, Aug. 8. Delivered oration at anniversary of literary societies, at Waterville.

Died, May 16, 1849, in Providence, after a protracted and painful illness, from organic disease of the heart, of many years standing.

Married, May 30, 1837, at Livermore, Me., Miss Ann Eliza, daughter of Rev. John Haynes, one of the original trustees of the college.

He left three sons and two daughters. Mrs. Bradford, two sons, and the surviving daughter, now live in New York City. One son is engaged in a course of study at Upper Alton, Ill.

[Full accounts of Mr. Bradford's life were published in funeral sermon, by Rev. J. N. Granger, D. D.; in Rev. T. B. Ripley's historical discourse, "Origin and Progress of the Baptist Church, in Yarmouth, Me.," 1861, and in an obituary, by Rev. M. M. Dean, Watchman and Reflector, June, 1849.]

A younger brother, Shadrach S., class of 1837, completed first term Senior year, then left and graduated at Columbian College, D. C., with others of his class.

IVORY CLARKE.

Son of James and Lydia (Brook) Clarke.

Born, March 8, 1807, in North Berwick, Me.

Studied, to prepare for college, in So. Berwick and Limerick. Instructor at S. B., Isaac Holton (V. U., 1814).

Legal residence while in college, Lebanon, Me.

1837, Apr. 3. Appointed to African mission.

Sept. 12. Ordained as evangelist, at Lebanon.

Nov. 26. Sailed from New York, in ship Emperor, and, Dec. 3, from Norfolk, having taken on board 95 Virginia blacks.

1838-45. Residence at Bexley, Liberia.

1845-48. " " Edina, "

Through these ten years, engaged in preaching, superintending the mission schools, translating portions of the New Testament, and making a dictionary of the Bassa language.

Often interrupted in labors by the fevers incident to the climate, so deadly to most Europeans, Mr. Clarke held out till Jan., 1846, when he began to fail; but clinging steadfastly to his work, he refused to quit the country till his case was beyond cure.

1848, Apr. 6. Embarked for America.

Died, Apr. 24, 1848, at sea, from effects of African fevers.

Married, Aug. 27, 1837, Miss Lois, dau. of John Guptill of N. Berwick.

Child: Wm. C., now living in Charlestown, Mass.

Mrs. Clarke's present residence is in So. Berwick.

THOMAS LEISHMAN.

Eldest child of John and Lydia (Clark) Leishman.

Born, Dec. 18, 1805, in Boothbay, his legal residence through student life.

While preparing for college, was private pupil of Dr. D. K. Kennedy (M. D., B. C., 1826), then of Boothbay.

After completing course, taught in Wiscasset, and, for about three months, studied medicine with Dr. Kennedy, at Boothbay.

1835-38. Studied law in China, under direction of S. A. Kingsbery (B. C., 1828).

1838, March. Admitted to Kennebec bar, and opened office at East Vassalboro', Me.

Died, May 8, 1838, in East Vassalboro', of bilious fever, after sickness of a few days.

Unmarried.

The grandfather of Thomas came from Scotland and settled in Boothbay, prior to 1770. In the male line, the family is now extinct.

EDWARD PAYSON MCKOWN.

Son of John and Abigail (Frothingham) McKown. The father was born in Boston, but began business life in Portland, as joint editor and publisher of the "Freeman's Friend," an organ of the Federalists. He removed to Charlestown, Mass., the home of the family during the son's college life.

Born, May 17, 1810, in Portland, Me.

1829-30. Pupil at Maine Wesleyan Seminary, Readfield, Merritt Caldwell (B. C., 1828), Principal.

1830-31. Studied under private teacher, in Hallowell.

1831. Entered college, as Sophomore.

1834-35. After graduating, Principal of Hallowell Academy, one year.

1836-37. Private tutor in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

1837, Aug. 2. Delivered oration for Master's Degree, at Commencement.

1837-39. Student (residence Chelsea, Mass.) in Theological School at Cambridge, during Middle and Senior years, and graduated, but was unable to perform his part, from ill health.

1839-54. Inmate of Asylum for the Insane. Two years in private asylum of Dr. Cutter, Pepperell, Mass., and from Oct. 17, 1842, till his death, at Lunatic Hospital, Worcester—his mind a blank.

Died, March 20, 1854, of pneumonia, at Worcester.

Unmarried.

The case of Mr. McKown is one of melancholy interest. A letter from Pres. Babcock to Rev. Dr. Nichols, of Portland, Aug. 1, 1834, speaks of him as, in scholarship, "probably the best in his class." A former member of the faculty says that his college compositions were remarkable for elegance in use of language. A classmate states that he was of "fine mind, ambitious, loving study for the sake of study."

ALBERT WELSTED POOLE.

Son of James and Patience (Hunnewell) Poole.

Born, March 20, 1813, in Portland, Me., the home of the family till the present time.

Prepared for college at Portland Acad., by Bezaleel Cushman (D. C., 1811).

1836. Went south, and for two years taught in Clinton, La.

1838. By marriage came into possession of a plantation, in Woodland, La., upon which he subsequently lived, occupied with the management of the estate, and acting as a kind of circuit preacher, supplying several churches.

Died, Sept. 27, 1865, of congestion of the lungs, at his father's house, in Portland, while on a visit to his native place.

Married, 1838, Mrs. Maria M. Woodward, of Woodland, La.

Child: A son, who was living with his mother on the plantation, at last accounts.

LEMUEL PORTER.

Oldest son of Capt. Lemuel and Hannah Porter.

Born, May 1st, 1809, in Boston, his legal residence during college course.

The father was a shipmaster, and acquired a fortune in voyages to the N. W. coast, China, and other distant parts.

Bred to mercantile life, the son was regarded as a young man of uncommon promise. Becoming interested in religion, he united, 1827, with the Baldwin Place Baptist church, and resolved to prepare for the ministry. He was bitterly opposed by his father, but firm of purpose, he put himself under the instruction of Robert E. Pattison (A. C., 1826), Principal of Amherst Academy, Mass. When, in 1828, Mr. Pattison was appointed Professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, in Waterville College, young Porter, with several others, was by his influence turned to Waterville, and entered Freshman class, Aug., 1830.

Before entrance, and throughout his course, he was an active, zealous and popular preacher, and was ordained an evangelist in Sidney, Dec. 16, 1830, where he preached on alternate Sundays through 1831, and often afterwards, as well as in Portland and Augusta. In the latter place he was greatly instrumental in founding the Baptist church.

1834. On graduating, he entered Newton Theological Seminary, but left at close of first year.

1835, Oct. 25. Installed pastor of Worthen St. Church, Lowell, Mass., and in this relation labored fifteen years, declining, meantime, invitations to settle in Washington, New York, and other cities.

1851, June 25. Installed as pastor of Baptist church in Pittsfield, Mass., of which Gov. Geo. N. Briggs was then a deacon. Here he labored till Jan., 1862. About the time of his settlement in Pittsfield, he lost, by unfortunate investment in railway stocks, most of the property inherited from his father.

1854. Received from Madison University degree of Doctor of Divinity.

1862, Oct.—1863, Sept. Pastor at Bloomington, Ill., until a long and severe illness obliged him to retire from that promising field.

1864, Feb. Appointed District Secretary of American Tract Society, he entered with ardor upon his duties, at Chicago.

Died, Oct. 17, 1864, of typhoid fever, induced by over-work. Buried at Mt. Auburn.

Married, Nov. 24, 1835. Miss Walthea Maria, daughter of Dea. John S. Skinner, of Windsor, Vt.

Children: Clara Maria, died in Pittsfield, fall of 1861.

Helen Gertrude.

Mrs. Porter, with her surviving daughter, was recently living in Windsor, Vt.

Dr. Porter is represented as a man of highly generous, pure and noble character. His ministry was eminently successful. During its thirty years he baptized more than 1200 persons. He was very laborious and systematic, and it is said that "few equalled him in executive ability."

WILLIAM STOCKBRIDGE.

Second son of William R. and Olive (True) Stockbridge.

Born, Nov. 17, 1813, in North Yarmouth, Me., his legal residence till close of student life.

He was of Pilgrim stock, his ancestor, John Stockbridge, having come from England to Plymouth colony, in the "Blessing," June, 1635.

Prepared for college at N. Yarmouth Acad., under Jos. Sherman (B. C., 1826), afterwards Pres. of a college in Tenn.

Studied medicine under direction of his brother-in-law, Dr. N. H. Carey (M. D., B. C., 1828), then of Wayne. Attended medical lectures and took degree, at Berkshire Medical College, Pittsfield, Mass.

Winter of 1839-40, went South, and commenced practice in Woodville, Miss., from which place he removed, in about a year, to West Feliciana Parish, La., where, in Bayou Sara, St. Francisville and Jackson, and in the territory lying between those places, he practiced till his death.

"He had an excellent reputation for skill in his profession, to the practice of which he devoted himself with the greatest assiduity."

Died, Oct. 2, 1853, of yellow fever, in the Parish (county) above named.
 Married, about a year before his death, Mrs. Jane Johns, widow of a physician.
 She afterwards married a merchant, and lives in New Orleans.

CLASS OF 1835.

HENRY PADELFORD BROWN.

Son of Enoch (B. U., 1801) and Melinda (Padelford) Brown.
 Born, Aug. 18, 1816, in Hampden, Me., which was the residence of the family till 1835, when they removed to Bangor.
 Pursued preparatory and Freshman studies at Hampden Academy, the last year under tuition of Asa Matthews (class of 1829), Principal from 1831-37.
 1832, Aug. Entered college one year in advance.
 1835, Aug. 5. Delivered Valedictory at graduation, William Lamson taking Salutatory.
 On leaving college, commenced, with ardor, the study of law, in the office of his father, at Bangor.
 Died, unmarried, Oct. 1, 1835, of typhoid fever, at his father's house in Bangor. Buried at Hampden.
 Passages from his diary, and the testimony of those who knew him, show that Mr. Brown had set before himself an exceedingly high standard of moral and intellectual attainment.
 [The father's written family record gives date of birth as "Aug. 18, 1816." The inscription on tablet, over the son's grave reads: "Died, Oct. 1, 1835, age 20 years." One or the other is obviously wrong. He undoubtedly died Oct. 1, 1835.]

RICHARD GARLAND COLBY.

Son of Colman and Phebe (Garland) Colby, and youngest but one of twelve children of one mother.
 Born, March, 1812, in Eaton, N. H., his legal residence during college life.
 Prepared for college at New Hampton Institution, N. H.
 1835-36. Principal of Bath Academy, Me.
 Reared a Universalist, but, while teaching in Bath, adopted the Swedenborgian belief, in which he died.
 1836-38. Studied law in Conway, N. H., under direction of Joel Eastman (D. C., 1824), and Mr. Cutler.
 1838. Admitted to the bar at Dover, N. H., but, July, opened an office in Lowell, Mass., where he soon gained distinction in his profession. An active and zealous Whig in politics.
 1841. Representative in the Massachusetts Legislature, from Lowell.
 1842. City Solicitor of Lowell.
 Died, Oct. 14, 1845, of typhoid fever, in Lowell.
 Married, Nov. 18, 1839, Miss Emily, daughter of Asa Sartwell, of Claremont, N. H.
 Children: Mary W., died Oct., 1843.
 Richard G., born 1843, died 1856.
 Kate Lamson, born 1845.
 Mrs. Colby and her surviving daughter, have recently removed from Claremont to Auburn, N. Y.

THOMAS HOBART PERRY.

Son of Daniel and Thankful (Hobart) Perry.
 Born, Aug. 20, 1813, in Abington, Mass., where his father still occupies the old homestead, at the age of 87 years.

His preparatory studies were prosecuted in the public schools of his native town, and for a single term, at Weymouth Academy.

1831, Sept. Entered Brown University, where he remained till close of first term Junior year.

1834, Spring. Entered at Waterville, second term Junior year, and graduated with the class, Aug. 5, 1835.

Engaged in school teaching for a time, after leaving college.

1837, Sept. 29. Having received, at this date, from the naval examiner, Prof. Edw. C. Mead, a certificate in which are these words: "After a strict and careful examination during three days * * * I think it due to state that his acquirements in the higher branches of Mathematics are superior to those of any others who have appeared before me," Mr. Perry received the appointment of Professor of Mathematics in the U. S. Navy.

In this capacity, he cruised for seven years, on board the ships Independence, Boston and Constellation, circumnavigating the globe and visiting its most interesting parts.

Having strong scientific tastes, he carefully observed the geology of countries visited, ascended volcanoes, explored thoroughly the great crater of Kilauea, on Hawaii, made various collections, from which a valuable donation of shells was sent to the college, constituting the basis of the present cabinet of conchology.

1844. On return to United States, he was for a short time engaged in the Coast Survey, when, tiring of sea life, he resigned his commission.

1845-47. Studied medicine in Philadelphia, and received degree of M. D., from one of the medical colleges of that city.

1847. Removed to St. Louis, Mo., with the intention of practicing as physician. Solicited to preach to the Swedenborgian Society of St. Louis, of which he was a member, he complied, and at the same time taught a private school.

Died, May 7, 1849, of cholera, at St. Louis.

Married, May 23, 1847, Miss Mary, daughter of Charles Harvey, of Philadelphia. She and her infant child died in St. Louis, June, 1848.

ALBERT FREEMAN TILTON.

Son of Josiah and Sarah (True) Tilton.

Born, Oct. 15, 1809, in Deerfield, N. H., his legal residence during college course.

Chelsea.

He did not marry.

CLASS OF 1838.

LEVI BEALS HATHAWAY.

Son of Shadrach and Susannah (Beals) Hathaway.

Born, May, 1810, in Peru, Berkshire Co., Mass.

Present through the whole course. A highly respectable scholar.

1838-40. Student at Newton Theol. Institution, through Jun. and Mid. years.
1840, Fall. Supplied pulpit of Baptist Church, in Farmington, Me., till ordination.

1841, June 30. Ordained as pastor, at Farmington, and so continued till about Oct., 1842.

1842-43. After leaving Farmington, preached six months in Pittston.

1843, April 1. From this date, till his death, pastor of Baptist Church in Rockport, Mass.

Died, Aug. 1, 1843, of some affection of the brain, at Rockport. "It was thought his sickness was caused by grief on account of his wife's death, which seemed to break him down. The doctors could not find any special disease. What there was lay in his head. But a short time before he died, the physician saw no reason why he should not recover, and was very much surprised to find him dying."

Married, April 12, 1841, Miss Abigail A. Wilson, of Southbridge, Mass. She died, July 26, 1842, aged 26 years. Her only child, Wilson Glazier, died Aug. 6, 1842, aged 21 days.

JAMES OLIVER.

Son of James and Mary (Cross) Oliver.

Born, Sept. 18, 1808, in Salem, Mass., his residence during college course.

Received his early education in public schools of Salem.

1829, May 22. Sailed from Salem, for the South Pacific, as sailor before the mast, in ship Glide, Capt. Henry Archer. The voyage was a general one, intended to exchange So. Pacific and East India products before being completed. Sailing past Cape Good Hope, made first port in New Zealand, Sept. 17. In Oct., the ship was disabled by running upon a coral rock, near one of the Fiji Islands, but was repaired, with assistance of officers and crew of brig Quill, of Salem.

1830, April. Having, with help from natives, then dangerous and treacherous cannibals, taken in a cargo, chiefly of biche de la mer (trepang), the ship sailed for Manila, and thence, July 17, on return to the Fijis, via Sandwich Islands.

1831, March 22. When nearly loaded again and about to quit finally the Fijis, the Glide was, in a hurricane, driven from her anchorage, and upon a shore reef of coral, projecting from the island of Tacanova, and became a total wreck. The ship's company were, with much dissent, spared by the natives, and after a residence among them of three months at Tacanova, and five at Wallis Island, Mr. Oliver sailed for the Navigators' Islands, thence to Honolulu, Valparaiso, Buenos Ayres and home, reaching Salem, July 5, 1833.

1833. Re-entered Salem Latin School, and completed preparation for college, under instruction of Oliver Carlton (D. C., 1824).

1834, Aug. Entered college, and completed full course of four years.

1838-39. Taught school in Maine—place, or places, unknown.

1840, Summer. Removed with his mother to Cambridge, Mass., and the following winter, was employed, at Boston, in office of Rev. Joseph B. Felt (D. C., 1813), then engaged in arranging Archives of Mass.

1842. Taught in Concord, Mass.

1844. Taught in Boston, till seized with his last sickness.

Died, unmarried, Jan., 1845, of typhoid fever, at his mother's house in Cambridge.

[In 1844, Mr. Oliver, with the aid of his half-brother, Mr. Wm. G. Dix (H. U., 1845), prepared for press the larger portion of a narrative of his early adventures, which was partly printed. On Mr. Oliver's decease, the printing was discontinued, but the book was published in 1848 (12mo., pp. 203, Wiley & Putnam, New York). Its title is, "Wreck of the Glide, with Recollections of the Fijis and Wallis Island." From this work—remarkable for concise, terse and graphic description—and recent letters from Mr. Dix, the foregoing notice has been drawn up.]

NATHANIEL GILMAN ROGERS.

Son of John and (Frances) Gilman Rogers.

Born, Apr. 25, 1818, in Exeter, N. H., his residence till close of college life. His preparatory studies were pursued at Phillips Academy, Exeter.

Throughout the college course he ranked as one of the very best scholars of his class. He was an excellent and uncommonly facile linguist. Room mate of Benj. F. Butler, after Freshman year.

1838-40. Principal of Waterville Academy, and during the same time read law, more or less, with his uncle, Hon. Timo. Boutelle (H. U., 1800).

1840, Nov. 4. Appointed Captain's Clerk, on board U. S. ship Boston, Capt. J. C. Long, and, on the 26th, sailed from New York on a three years' cruise round the world.

1842, Feb. 1. Appointed Purser for the same ship.
 1843, Aug. 3. Arrived in Boston, on return, and, Aug. 15, his pay ceased.
 After last date he is thought to have held a clerkship in one of the departments, at Washington, but for how long a time is unknown.
 1845-47. Taught in Virginia.
 1847. Enlisted in forces raised for Mexican War, and went, in what capacity is unknown, from Virginia to Mexico.
 Died, summer or fall of 1847, it is believed of camp fever, in Mexico.
 He was never married.
 [His brother, John F. Rogers, furnished most of the foregoing facts and dates.
 He was cashier of Railroad National Bank, Lowell, Mass., and died
 June 16, 1870, at the age of 50.]

ELISHA MADISON THURSTON.

Son of Timothy and Lucy (Hayden) Thurston.
 Born, March 24, 1810, in Orange county, Vt.
 Lived in Vermont until age of 19, engaged chiefly in farming.
 1829-31. Lived in Grafton, Mass., which, while in college, he gave as his residence.
 Commenced preparatory studies in Newton High School, and completed them at South Reading Academy.
 At graduation he delivered the Salutatory, and Danford Thomas the Valedictory.
 1838-44. Principal of Charleston Academy, Me., a new school.
 1843. Elected Representative to the State Legislature.
 1844, Aug. Health failing, he was confined to his bed for nearly a year.
 1846 and '47. Member of State Senate, two terms. "He endeavored to secure a general State revision of the common school system, which, by his earnest and persevering efforts, was finally carried into effect."
 1850, '51 and '52. Sec'y of Me. Board of Education. Residence still at Charleston. After 1852, he was for some time laid aside from business by sickness.
 1854, Oct. 16. Went West, spent three years in Missouri and Kansas, and shared in the "troubles" of that region and period.
 1857, Autumn. Disposed of his property in Me., and removed his family to Manhattan, Kansas. During his residence in Kansas, he practiced law, and had an extensive business. Was Mayor of Manhattan at time of his death.
 Died, March 17, 1859, of violent hemorrhage of the lungs, at Manhattan.
 Married, Aug., 1843, Angeline R. Montgomery. She died, Oct. 5, 1858, suddenly, of typhoid fever, aged 32 years. [Age thus given by dau.]
 He left four daughters. Three are still living. The two oldest are teachers in Kansas.

FREDERIC SLOCUM WILEY.

Son of Benjamin B. and Keturah (Green) Wiley.
 Born, March 18, 1819, in South Reading (now Wakefield), Mass., his home during student life.
 Prepared for college at South Reading Academy.
 His rank in scholarship was highly respectable. His graduating oration was regarded as a brilliant performance, subject "Reason and Faith," suggested by a passage in Locke on the Understanding.
 After leaving college he studied law in Philadelphia, with Wm. D. Kelley, now the distinguished M. C. from that city; but he did not enter upon practice.
 1845-48. Student in Theological Seminary at Alexandria, Va.
 1848, July 13. Ordained Deacon of the Episcopal church, and, in 1849, Presbyter, at Philadelphia.
 1848-49. Assistant to Rev. Benj. C. Cutler, D. D. (B. U., 1822), Rector of St.
 Ann's Church, Brooklyn, N. Y.
 1849, Nov. 4—50, Nov. Rector of church in Honesdale, Penn.
 1850, Nov. 17. From this date was one year stationed at Saratoga, N. Y.
 1852, Sept. 5—55. Rector in Philadelphia.

- 1855, Sept.—'62. Oct. Rector of Christ Church, New York.
For a short time, at opening of the war, Chaplain of the gallant 71st Regiment of New York.
1863. Failing health having compelled him to resign his pastorate, he sought to invigorate his debilitated constitution by a visit to Europe. At Paris his disease became alarming, and he hastened to Italy, but only to die.
- Died, Jan. 20, 1864, at Florence, from disease of the heart, with which he had been afflicted during the whole of his ministerial career.
- Married, Oct. 23, 1849, Miss Frances M. Pierrepont.
He left no children. Mrs. Wiley's residence is at 148 East 35th St., New York.
He refused proffered honorary degrees.
- "Though favored with large wealth, he was in no sense exclusive or aristocratic in his sympathies. * * To the poor he was a devoted friend, and the gloom of many a sick chamber, in obscure streets and alleys, was brightened by his coming with messages from the Friend of Sinners."

CLASS OF 1839.

ISAAC CHIPMAN.

- Son of Rev. William and Mary McGowan (Dickie) Chipman.
Born, July 17, 1817, in Cornwallis (township), Nova Scotia, his residence while at Waterville.
- Prosecuted at Horton, N. S., under tuition of Rev. John Pryor (King's Coll., N. S., 1823), afterwards Pres. of Acadia Coll., and Mr. Edward Blanchard, the preparatory studies and those of Freshman and Sophomore years.
- 1837, Aug. Entered Junior class. An enthusiastic student, and maintained a high rank in scholarship. While in college wrote his name Isaac Logan Chipman, but afterwards dropped the middle name.
- 1839, Dec. Returned from the States to Nova Scotia.
- 1840, Jan. Appointed Prof. Math, and Nat. Phil., in Acadia College, established at Horton, N. S., in 1838. Here he labored with great ardor, perseverance and success, till his death. Rev. Dr. Cramp ("Centenary of the Baptists of Nova Scotia," 1860) says of him: "Among the men [Nov. Scot. Baptists] of our time, Professor Chipman holds the first place."
- 1852, June. The Anniversary of Acadia College having occurred on the 4th, Rev. E. D. Very, one of the Board of Governors, and Pastor of the Bap. Church, in Portland suburb, St. John, N. B., proposed an excursion to Cape Blomidon, for the purpose of collecting minerals. Mr. Very preached on Sunday, the 6th; and on the next morning, Prof. Chipman, Mr. Very, and four students, with two boatmen, set out for the Cape. As they were returning in the P. M., the wind increased to a gale, the boat was swamped, and all of the party were drowned, except one boatman. This disaster Dr. Cramp styles (Letters on "N. S. Ch. Hist."): "The greatest calamity that ever befell N. S. Baptists."
- From the several accounts of Prof. Chipman's life it is inferred that he was never married.
- Mr. Very was a native of Salem, Mass., a member of the class of 1837, at Waterville, and completed the Junior year, then left and graduated at Dart. Coll. This class broke up (only three graduating) by way of protest against the method of assigning parts then in vogue, and figures in the history of this college, much as the "Conscientious Class," of 1835, does in that of Brown University.

SAMUEL SAWYER JOHNSON.

- Son of Andrew and Betsey (Day) Johnson.
Born, Oct. 14, 1809, in Ludlow, Vt., which he regarded as his residence till close of life.

Prepared for college, in part, at the High School in Chester, Vt., but chiefly by private and unaided study.

One of the best scholars of an able class, and greatly respected for sound and Christian character.

1839-41. Tutor in college, and discharged the duties of his office with fidelity and success.

1841. Suffering from pulmonary disease, he went South, in the spring of this year, hoping by change of climate to regain his health; but as it continued steadily to decline, he returned to Vermont in Jan., 1842.

Died, March 14, 1842, of consumption, at Ludlow.

He was unmarried.

DAVID AIKEN RICHARDSON.

Son of David and Susan (Cochran) Richardson.

Born, Oct. 22, 1809, in Londonderry, Vt., his residence till 1840.

His preparatory studies were pursued at Burr Seminary, Manchester, Vt., and the Academy in Bennington.

"He hoped to be a preacher of the gospel, and at one time thought of a foreign mission. At the close of his collegiate course, an affection of the throat, which had troubled him for several years, forbade continuous speaking, and he was compelled to relinquish the one desire of his heart. His physician thought he might be able to teach in a mild climate, and accordingly he located in the West."

1840-45. Taught a school in Alton, Illinois.

1845. Opened a school in St. Louis, Mo., which became very prosperous, but increasing ill-health compelled him to abandon it, in the summer of '46.

1846. "In obedience to his physician, he made several tours on horseback, in the State of Missouri, but all to no purpose; health did not return." Yielding to the persuasion of eastern friends, he returned in Oct., to New England.

Died, March 10, 1847, of consumption, at the house of his father-in-law, in Bangor, Me. Buried at Mt. Hope Cemetery.

Married, July, 1842, Miss Susan Jane, daughter of Dea. Royal Clarke, of Bangor, long a trustee of the college.

Child: A daughter, who died in the fall of 1845. Mrs. Richardson is now living in Oxford, Me.

"He was successful as a teacher, but never ceased to regret his inability to preach. * * * Of a sympathetic and social nature, he was well suited to all the relations of life. * * * Firm in principle, he never swerved. Loving knowledge for its own sake, he eagerly sought it to the close of life."

WILLIAM HARRISON THOMPSON.

Oldest child of James and Susan (Patterson) Thompson.

Born, April 21, 1814, in Starks(?), Me., which was his residence during college life.

Fitted for college at Wesleyan Seminary, Readfield.

While an undergraduate he made a profession of religion, and, 1838, united with the Waterville Cong. ch., in which he made himself highly useful. An active Christian henceforward.

1839, Oct. 18. Sailed from Gardiner, Me., in bark Fairfield, with his younger brother, and classmate, Joshua S., for the South. Nov. 5th, disappointed, at Philadelphia, of a freight for Mobile, the captain accepted a load of coal for Boston, and the brothers were left to shift for themselves.

Nov. 13th found Wm. H. installed as Principal of the Academy at Swedesboro', N. J., where he labored till his death, enjoying, in a marked degree the confidence and regard of the community.

Soon after establishing himself in N. J., he commenced the study of the law, under direction of Thos. Carpenter, of Woodbury, intending in due time to enter upon the practice of his chosen profession.

Died, Aug. 16, 1842, of bilious fever, in Swedesboro', N. J.

Married, Aug. 2, 1840, at Swedesboro', Miss Phebe, dau. of Col. E. H. Scribner, of Waterville, Me.

Child: Charles G., now in business at Ripon, Wis., his mother residing with him.

EDWARD WILLIAMS.

Son of Seth and Hannah (Waters) Williams.

Born, Apr. 27, 1817, in Augusta, Me., his residence till 1841.

He was fitted for college at Augusta, in the private school of Rev. John H. Ingraham.

After graduating, he spent about two years in Augusta, as a law student in the office of his uncle, Hon. Reuel Williams.

1841. Left Augusta, and went upon a whaling voyage of several years' duration; after his return, took up his residence in New Orleans, where, engaged in various occupations, he remained until his death.

Died at New Orleans, in 1862, probably of consumption, as when last met with by a member of the class of 1840, long resident in that city, he was suffering from lung disease.

He did not marry.

CLASS OF 1840.

MARSHALL SPRING CHASE.

Son of Dr. Hall and Hannah McMillan (Spring) Chase.

Born, Sept. 2, 1821, in Waterville, Me., where his father, who received the honorary degree of M. D. from Bowdoin College, in 1822, was a well-known physician for many years, and until his death in 1851.

His studies preparatory for college were completed at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass.

At graduation, he delivered the Salutatory Oration.

Studied law with Hon. Timo. Boutelle (H. U., 1800), of Waterville, and Hon. Abraham Sanborn (class of 1828), of Bangor, and attended lectures at Cambridge.

1843. Began professional life in Boston, where he practiced with marked success for eight years.

1851, Oct. Removed to California, and engaged in practice at San Francisco.

1859. Transferred his residence to Martinez, Contra Costa Co., and there retained it till his death.

Throughout the period of his residence in California, he maintained a leading position in his profession. The Alta newspaper, in noticing his death, says, Mr. Chase "was a man of brilliant talent, and possessed of wonderful oratorical power."

Died, Jan. 24, 1869, at Martinez, of pneumonia, after an illness of only a few days.

Married, June, 1867, Mrs. Jane Fuller, and left no children.

LEBBEUS KINGMAN.

Son of Lebbeus and Sally (Morse) Kingman.

Born, June 16, 1810, in Waltham, Me., his residence while a student.

Engaged in the ministry immediately after leaving college.

1841-42. Pastor of 2d Bap. ch. in Sedgwick (part now Brooklin), where he was ordained, Feb., 1841.

1842-43. Not settled, but supplied churches in Monson, Dover and Foxcroft, Me.

1843-55. Pastor at Guilford.

1845-48. " " Surry.

1848-50. " " No. Bangor (Veazie).

1850-54. " " No. Sedgwick.

1854-58. " " China.

1858-64. " " Dexter.

1864-66. " " New Gloucester.

1866, Sept. 3. Health having failed, he removed to Vineland, N. J., hoping to derive advantage from its salubrious climate. Here he employed himself in fruit-raising and horticulture, occasionally preaching till close of life.

"He proved himself wise in counsel, and an excellent pastor."

Died, Nov. 15, 1869, at Vineland, of bronchial consumption and disease of liver.

Married, April 26, 1841, Miss Ruth A. Flye, of Sedgwick (Brooklin), Me.

Children: Five sons and two daughters, all living, with the mother, in Vineland.

WILLIAM STEPHENS KNAPP.

- Feb. 21, 1847, Miss Sarah M., daughter of Wm. Barron, of Topsham.
- Children: Six, of whom five, with Mrs. Kuox, survive.
- Mr. Knox was eminently a Christian gentleman. Faithful, earnest, of rare suavity of manners, and of fine person, few men more quickly won the love and confidence of his fellows, or longer retained them.

THOMAS RAINSFORD.

- Son of Josiah Collins and Sarah (Chittenden) Rainsford.
 Born, April 25, 1815, in Boston, Mass., his residence while in college.
 The father was a member of Dr. Stillman's (First Bap.) church, Boston, and, probably, one of the founders of Dr. Baldwin's, of which he was deacon. From about 1821, the family lived a few years in So. Abington, but returned to Boston.
- The son was prepared for college at Derby Academy, Hingham, Mass.
1832. Entered Brown University, but left the same year, from circumstances consequent upon death of his father.
- 1836, May. Entered at Waterville, third term Freshman year.
- 1838, Aug. Having completed the Junior year, he was absent from college one year, for the benefit of his health. "He was never well, having inherited consumption from his mother," who, as well as his only brother, had already died of that disease.
- 1839, Sept. Joined class of 1840, and graduated with it.
- Abundant testimony exists that he was a man of capacity and wide range of information, but it is certain that, from feeble health and strange and desultory habits, he failed to accomplish in college what his talents promised.
- 1840-41. After graduating, taught in Maine a short time as private tutor, and, in the winter, as Assistant in the Normal School at So. Bridgewater, Mass.
1841. Convinced that only residence in a milder climate could prolong his life, he removed before close of year to Alabama.
- 1842-43. Taught as private tutor in vicinity of Montgomery.
- 1843-44. Principal of Academy in Benton, Lowndes Co., Ala., and continued to teach up to some three weeks before his death.
- Subsequently to graduation he privately studied with reference to entering Swedenborgian ministry, having joined, before entering college, a church of that faith, in No. Bridgewater, Mass.
- Died, unmarried, July, 1844, of consumption, at Benton, Ala.

WILDER BROWN START.

- Son of Ebenezer and Betsey (Mansfield) Start.
 Born, Jan. 16, 1815, in Camden, Me., his only place of residence.
 His father was a highly respected deacon of the Cong. church, in Camden.
- The son was prepared for college, probably at Wesleyan Seminary, Readfield.
1840. On graduating, he entered Bangor Theol. Sem., where he studied for two years. While at Bangor he became a Millerite, gave himself up to his delusion, and went preaching it with extravagant zeal from town to town. Though he was not commonly regarded as insane, his case was clearly one of monomania.
- Died, Mar. 13, 1846, of consumption, in Camden, the last of a family of six children, all of whom died young, of that disease.
- He was unmarried.

CLASS OF 1841.

THOMAS MERRILL.

Son of Jonathan and Sarah (Benson) Merrill.

Born, May 19, 1814, in Newbury, Mass., his residence while he was a student. Preparatory course taken at Phillips Academy, Andover.

1841-44. Student in Newton Theol. Institution.

1844-46. For a time, resident graduate at Newton. Summer of '45, supplied Bap. church, Eastport, Me. At other times supplied other churches.

1846-47. Pastor of Bap. church in Baring, Me., where he was ordained, Mar., 1846.

1847-49. Obligated, from ill health, to relinquish ministry, he engaged in trade in Newburyport, Mass.

1849, Feb. 2. Sailed for California, hoping that change of climate might benefit his health. He was long detained on the Isthmus, grew very sick, and barely lived to reach his destination.

Died, Oct. 24, 1849, at Sacramento, Cal., of dysentery.

He did not marry.

"Mr. Merrill was naturally quiet and retiring, a strong thinker, and of considerable originality. With firmer health, and length of days, he would have accomplished much for the good of men."

[He had a middle name, but dropped it after entering college.]

WILLIAM WEBBER WOODBURY.

Son of Joseph and Lavinia (Webber) Woodbury.

Born, Sept. 18, 1815, in Ludlow, Vt.

The family removed, in 1817, to Cavendish, and, in 1830, to Acworth, N. H., which was his legal residence during the college course.

1835. Began, in late autumn, to fit for college at New Hampton Inst., where he studied for two terms; and coming to Waterville, fall of 1836, recited to his elder brother Joseph (class of 1839), completing preparatory course, except a final term at Waterville Academy.

1837, Aug. Entered Freshman, and completed Junior year, taking rank as first scholar of his class. From want of means, he left college, engaged in teaching at Augusta, and did not graduate. After some years, as a testimony to distinguished merit, the degrees were conferred by act of Trustees, and his name added to the catalogue.

1840-43. Principal of the Augusta High School.

1843-48. Principal of the Bath High School.

1848-56. Principal of Conn. Lit. Inst., Suffield, till his death.

Died, March 18, 1856, at Suffield, Conn., of lung fever, after a short illness.

Married, Nov. 14, 1841, Miss Climena, daughter of Elisha Hallett, of Augusta.

Children: Three sons and one daughter. The oldest son served in defence of his country from the beginning of the late war till May, 1864, when he was dangerously wounded, and recovered only after months of suffering. The second was lost at sea, Dec., 1869. Mrs. W. and her three surviving children now live in Augusta.

[The writer of these notices, Mr. Woodbury's pupil one year, and his associate in teaching four, would feel himself to be delinquent, were he not to add to this bare outline of a life "great in duty well performed," some sketch of the admirable instructor.

To scholarship not of the widest, but of sufficient range, and of exceeding accuracy, were joined, in Mr. Woodbury, absolute self-control, keen penetration, tact in management, decision in enforcing law, indefatigable industry, and single-hearted and entire devotion to his work. In other words, besides sound learning, he possessed the executive qualities in high degree. His power to educate, in the etymological sense, was remarkable. If there was anything in his pupil, he was sure to draw it out. If there was solid material in the recipient of his instructions, he scored him with a deep and abiding mark. The aim in all his efforts was perfection. He was never stereotyped, but ever fresh and progressive, and the observing member of his school found himself surprised by frequent improvements in means and methods that had seemed matchless before. No one who never experienced it can understand the magic of his simple presence in the school room. The fellow-teacher of twenty-five felt it no less, and appreciated it far more, than the school boy of fifteen.

And though so many years have passed since his labor was ended, the memory of their revered master is fresh as ever in the minds of his former pupils, and such words as these may still be heard from graduates of the best colleges in the land: "To Mr. Woodbury, more than to all other teachers, am I indebted." Yet to those who knew this rare educator the thought is a sad one, that for the time to come no fitting record of his work and worth will be left behind. Therefore is it that,—trifling substitute for the volume that should be written—these words have been penned for these fugitive pages.]

Joseph Franklin, the brother referred to above, born in 1811, completed the second term Junior year, with high rank in scholarship. On account of failure of health, he then left and went to Georgia, became a physician, and afterwards an apothecary, in Atlanta, where he still resides.

This was the last class that graduated under the old system of assigning parts, the first scholar taking the Valedictory oration, the second having the Salutatory.

CLASS OF 1842.

SAMUEL STANLEY FULLERTON.

Son of William and Meribah (Stanley) Fullerton.

Born, Sept. 14, 1811, in Wolfsborough, N. H.

Fitted for college at Parsonsfield Academy, Me., under Hosea Quimby (class of 1832).

1839. Entered college at opening of spring term, Freshman year.

Legal residence, while a member, Sandwich, N. H.

During course, his health was feeble, and he had one attack of hemorrhage of the lungs.

He was a diligent student, a member of the Free-will Baptist denomination, had the ministry in view, and, while prosecuting his studies, often preached to destitute churches.

After graduation, he engaged in teaching, in Wilmington, Mass.

Died, Apr. 19, 1843, of quick consumption, at Dracut, Mass.

Was not married.

MOSES HANSCOM.

Son of Moses and Esther (Hall) Hanscom.

Born, July 19, 1824, in Farmington, Me.

1838. Family removed to Waterville, still their residence.

Prepared for college at Parsonsfield Academy, Hosea Quimby (class of 1832). Principal.

1842. After leaving college, his health failed. Went South, for change of climate, and taught, one year, in Raleigh, N. C.

1844-50 (about). In trade at Lowell, Mass., till obliged, by ill-health, to quit business.

1850-52. An invalid, at his father's house in Waterville.

1852, Dec. 24. Left for California. "Prospected," for a time, in the gold regions: then settled in Marysville, as a Photographic Artist, and, says a Marysville newspaper, "for ten years did brave battle with that deadly foe, consumption, succumbing at last from sheer exhaustion, being on the street only three days before his death."

Died, Apr. 20, 1863, of consumption, at Marysville, Cal.

Married, Aug. 7, 1846, Miss Artie Richardson of Lowell. She died, Oct. 31, 1849.

Child: Artie, born May 14, 1847, drowned, at West Waterville, June 8, 1864.

CLASS OF 1843.

ZACHARIAH BOODY CAVERLY.

Son of Rev. John and Nancy (French) Caverly.

Born, March 18, 1822, in Strafford, N. H., his residence while a student.

Fitted for college, at Strafford, under David Dickey (D. C., 1835), and Rev. Mr. Burbank.

1843-46. Read law in office of his uncle, Robert Boody Caverly, of Lowell, Mass.

1847-53. Practiced law, in Lowell, with reputation and success.

1853, Aug. 23. Sailed for South America. Landing at Para, Brazil, he thence ascended the Amazon, crossed the Andes, and at length took up his residence at Lima, Peru, where he remained till Feb., 1860, under appointments, by Presidents Pierce and Buchanan, to the office of Secretary of U. S. Legation.

1860, Feb. Returned to U. S., and made his residence in Washington, D. C., until, on account of failing health, he went, Apr., 1862, to Beaufort, S. C.

Died, May 24, 1862, of pulmonary consumption, at Beaufort.

Married, Nov. 13, 1856, Miss Rebecca Marquand, daughter of Hon. Nathan Crosby, of Lowell.

Children: Amy and Cecil, now with their mother, in Lowell.

SAMUEL PHILBRICK.

Son of John R. and Hannah (White) Philbrick.

Born, March 6, 1823, in Waterville, Me., his only residence.

Completed preparatory studies under Thomas G. Kimball (B. C., 1838), at Waterville "Liberal Institute."

He was, throughout his collegiate course, in feeble health, and unequal to great exertion. Possessed of a clear mind, excellent sense, taste for science and facility in acquiring language, he was amiable and upright, and greatly beloved by his associates.

After graduating, he fell immediately into a decline.

Died, unmarried, Aug. 16, 1844, of consumption, at his father's house in Waterville.

CLASS OF 1844.

CHARLES COBURN.

Son of Eleazer and Mary (Weston) Coburn.

Born, March 5, 1822, in Bloomfield (now included in Skowhegan), his residence till close of life.

His father was an early benefactor of the college, and a trustee from 1836 till his death in 1845.

Fitted for college at Waterville Academy, Nath'l G. Rogers (class of 1838), Principal.

1843-44. Spent winter at Washington, D. C.

One of the best scholars of a class that comprised an unusual number of able, ambitious and laborious students.

Died, unmarried, Oct. 30, 1844, of lung fever, in Bloomfield.

He was brother of Stephen (class of 1839), Alonzo and Samuel (class of 1841), and of Abner, recently Governor of Maine.

JOHN REED GREENOUGH.

Son of John Reed and Elizabeth (Hall) Greenough.

Born, July 21, 1824, in Clinton, Me. The family removed to Bangor, which was their home during the son's college course.

He studied, in preparation for college, at Bangor High School.

1844-47. Student in Bangor Theological Seminary.

1847, Aug. 21. Ordained as pastor of Baptist church in Oldtown, which relation he held about one year, when health failed, and he left the ministry.

1848-52. Employed in office of Clerk of Courts, Bangor, so long as health permitted.

Died, July 10, 1853, at Bangor, of consumption, after a sickness of "two or three years." Confined to house for last year.

Married, Sept. 20, 1847, Justina C., daughter of Nicholas Chesley, of Bangor. She survived her husband, but has since died.

Child: John Chesley, born March 26, 1850, and now living in Stillwater, Minnesota.

LORENZO DOW ROYCE.

Second son of Andrew and Deborah (Sanborn) Royce.

Born, Oct. 5, 1820, in Sharon, Vt.

After the death of his father and brother (both died Sept., 1832,) he removed with his mother and sister to Unity, N. H., and thence, in 1835, to Claremont, N. H., which was the mother's home till 1845, and the son's legal residence while in college.

Prosecuted preparatory studies in Claremont High School, and under private tuition.

[The family having become extinct, the facts and dates of his early life have been ascertained with great difficulty.]

1841, Feb. Entered college at opening of second term, Freshman year.

Having the ministry in view, he aimed to make himself a critical student of the Scriptures in their original tongues. Hence, while he took high rank in all the studies of the course, he was confessedly the foremost "Grecian" of the time, in college.

1844-47. Student in Newton Theological Institution, and, it is understood, gave himself to Hebrew and Greek with equal ardor.

1847-48. On leaving Newton, his health was so much impaired by over-work that he was obliged to rest. Remained with his mother, then living in Malden, where, in Newburyport and other places, he occasionally preached.

1848, Oct. 17. Ordained as pastor of the 2d Baptist church in Thomaston, Me. Here he labored with characteristic power, earnestness and determination, exerting every faculty to its utmost. In the winter of 1849-50, while on exchange with a neighboring minister, he took a severe cold, which his system, impaired in vigor, was unable to throw off. Reluctantly, when he could no longer preach, he withdrew to his mother's home in Malden, to rest and recover from his "cold." One who was present at his death, says: "His decline, though not apparent, was extremely rapid, and his decease, at last, very sudden and unexpected."

Died, Sept. 3, 1850, of consumption, in Malden, at the age of 30 years.

He was not married.

Had Mr. Royce's life been prolonged, his strength, industry, persistency and enthusiasm must have won for him distinction.

GEORGE WOODBRIDGE STICKNEY.

Son of George and Mary North (Stackpole) Stickney.

Born, March 20, 1826, in Clinton (part now Benton), Me.

Both parents died in his childhood, and he was reared in the family of his grandfather and uncle, James Stackpole, Sr., and Jr., in Waterville, which was the home of his college days.

Prepared for entrance at Wat. Acad., by several teachers, completing fit in the Liberal Institute, under Thos. G. Kimball (B. C., 1838).

1843, May 21. Received, by baptism, to membership in Baptist Church, Waterville.

1844-46. Student at Newton Theological Institution through Junior and Middle years. Left on account of failure of health, and gave himself to efforts for its restoration.

1846-47. Preached, through winter, for Baptist Church in Camden, Me.

1847, Summer. Made a sea voyage along the coast, southward, for health.

Dec. Returned to Camden, where he was ordained as pastor, Feb., '48, and so continued till Nov., following.

1848, Nov. From this date, he was sick, chiefly at home in Waterville.

Died, Oct. 15, 1850, in Waterville, of diabetes.

Married, May 10, 1848, Miss Harriet S. Marston, of Waterville. She is now wife of Rev. Abraham Snyder of Ohio.

In college, as afterwards, Mr. Stickney especially distinguished himself as a writer, evincing strength, originality and raciness beyond his years. His endowments of mind and character promised usefulness and eminence in the ministry.

CLASS OF 1845.

CHARLES GREEN HANSCOM.

Son of Oliver and Ruth (Rich) Hanscom.

Born, May 13, 1824, in China, Me., the residence of the family through the son's undergraduate course.

Fitted for college at China Academy, chiefly by Henry Paine (class of 1823).

After graduating, taught for about a year, and then completed, with his uncle Jabez C. Woodman (B. C., 1822), of Portland, legal studies elsewhere begun, and was admitted to the Cumberland bar.

1847-50. Practiced law in Wisconsin, first at Potosi, afterwards at Oshkosh.

1850-51. Spent a year in Central America.

1851-63. In practice of his profession at La Crosse, Wis.

1863. Spent in Colorado. Member of Territorial Legislature.

1864, May. Left La Crosse, his residence, in company with a brother and others, on an expedition to Idaho.

July 14. The party, increased during their march of 300 miles to a band of 80 men and some 30 women and children, had encamped for the night, when about 25 well mounted Sioux made a dash upon them, and quickly disappeared. Mr. Hanscom had just gone over a hill a few rods to the river, for the purpose of watering his mules. Some of the company heard the report of a gun, and seizing their arms, ran to the river, just in time to see the Indians making off with the mules. Mr. Hanscom, unwilling to relinquish his property, had offered some resistance and been shot through the head and instantly killed.

His energy, self-reliance, cheerful and ready wit, and love of adventure, qualified him admirably for pioneer life, and secured him an easy ascendancy over the the class of men with whom he met in his wanderings.

Married, Oct. 19, 1853, Miss Annie J., dau. of Abraham W. Anderson (M. D., B. C., 1829). Mrs. Hanscom and her two daughters were, in 1865, resident at La Crosse.

HOBBS HATCH.

Eldest son of Elisha and Elizabeth (Hobbs) Hatch.
 Born, Dec. 25, 1819, in Wells, his only residence.
 Pursued the preparatory and Freshman studies under Hall Roberts (class of 1836), at Union Academy, Kennebunk, Me.
 Entered at beginning of Sophomore year, and completed course.
 After graduating he returned to his father's, and was about to take charge of Elliot Academy, when he was taken sick.
 Died, unmarried, Dec. 2, 1845, at Wells, of typhoid fever, after an illness of six weeks.
 He was a young man of blameless character, a faithful student, and struggled hard to obtain an education.

AUGUSTUS PULLEN.

Son of Larnard and Mary (Cowan) Pullen.
 Born, Aug. 9, 1824, in Augusta, Me.
 Prepared for college principally under Henry Paine (class of 1823), at China Academy.
 During the son's collegiate course, the family residence was, for the first two years, at China, the last two in Waterville.
 1845-46. Principal of High School and Academy, at Newport, Me.
 1846-47. Principal of Academy in Williamston, Martin Co., N. C.
 1847-48. Student at Newton Theological Institution.
 1848-49. Taught in Newport and Union, Me.
 1849-50. Preached at Union six months, and subsequently three months at Frankfort, under direction of Baptist Board of Dom. Miss. He did not receive ordination.
 Died, Aug. 31, 1850, very suddenly, at Oldtown, Me., where he was on an exchange with Rev. Lewis Barrows (class of 1839).
 He did not marry.

JONATHAN VAN WAGENEN.

Son of Benjamin and Catharine (Dubois) Van Wagenen.
 Born, Mar. 4, 1828, at New Paltz, Ulster Co., N. Y.
 He was descended on the paternal side from Holland ancestry, and on the maternal was of Huguenot stock. His father was a highly respected citizen. His grandfather, Jona. Dubois, was County Judge, and member of the Convention that framed for the State of New York the Constitution of 1846.
 Prepared for college at New Paltz Acad., under the tuition of Eliphaz Fay (B. U., 1821), and came with him to Waterville, Aug., 1841, when Mr. Fay assumed the Presidency of the college. At the same time came Wm. Henry Van Der Burgh, of Pleasant Valley, Dutchess Co., N. Y., a member of this class, who at close of Sophomore year relinquished course, and never graduated.
 Mr. Van Wagenen possessed strong literary tastes, and was regarded among his fellow students as a fine writer. Several of his shorter poems were published in various papers, and were thought to evince considerable poetic talent. He was a lover of books and showed great discrimination in his choice of them.
 1845-46. Assisted Sidney Keith (class of 1844), in Vt. Lit. and Sci. Inst., at Brandon.
 Subsequently taught at Macon, Noxubee Co., Miss., and Columbus, Lowndes Co. For a time, preached to a Baptist Church in Shiloh, Miss., and elsewhere, but was never ordained.
 Health failing, he gave up work as an instructor and preacher, and became a telegraph operator, first at Cape Girardeau, Ill., whence he removed to Smithland, Ky., and there continued in the same occupation till his death.
 Died, 4 [?] March, 1852, of consumption, at Smithland.
 He was never married.

CLASS OF 1846.

HUGH DEMPSEY.

Born, August, 1816, in the city of Londonderry, Ireland.

The names of his parents are unknown. His father engaged in a land speculation, and losing all he had, sank into a decline, and died when the son was about fourteen years of age. The family were Catholics. A few years later, Hugh emigrated to America, settled in Woodstock, Conn., and learned the shoe-maker's trade, at which he worked for some years.

Having become a convert to the Protestant faith, he united with the Baptists. After a time, with the ministry in view, he began and completed the studies preparatory for college, at Conn. Lit. Inst., Suffield.

1842, Sept. Entered college, and was present with his class every term of the course.

1846-49. Student at Newton Theological Institution.

1849-52. Travelled as Colporteur in Maine, preaching to destitute churches.

1852, Oct. Engaged by Bap. church in Jay, Me., to supply their pulpit for one year.

1853, June 28. Ordained as pastor of the church in Jay, which relation he held with honor to himself, and with profit to the people, until his death. He was a good man, and emphatically a peace-maker.

1859, May 2. Went to Fairfield to transact business relating to property which he owned in that vicinity.

May 11. Having finished his business, he started for home, but his horse from some cause becoming unmanageable, he jumped from the wagon, and received an internal injury from which he seems to have died in a few minutes. Found dead by the road-side. His remains were interred at Norridgewock.

Married, Aug. 30, 1847, Miss Maria W., daughter of Heber Wheeler of Norridgewock.

He left three sons and one daughter. The eldest son died at the age of 15. Mrs. Dempsey afterwards became the wife of Mr. Daniel Gross, now of Auburn, Me.

[Note must be made of one member of this class who did not live to graduate.

JOHN WATERMAN HARRIS was son of Dea. Thomas J. Harris. He was born in Strafford, Vt., Nov. 5, 1826, but early removed with his parents to Claremont, N. H., where his father still resides. He pursued the usual preparatory studies under the able tuition of Cyrus S. Richards (D. C., 1835), Principal, to the present time, of Kimball Union Academy, Meriden, N. H. Young Harris entered college, Feb., 1843, at the opening of the second term, Freshman year. He brought with him an eager love of knowledge. He was an earnest student in all departments, but exhibited in the study of language remarkable power and facility. The Greek was the object of his passionate pursuit. His ardor became a consuming fire that devoured all before it,—even himself.

In spite of all efforts on the part of faculty, fellow students, and relatives, and notwithstanding his own forebodings, noted in his diary, and his intelligent understanding of the laws of his physical system, he yet persisted in study so intense and prolonged, that health was soon lost beyond recovery.

Under the supervision of Prof. Champlin, he undertook and completed an edition of T. K. Arnold's "Introduction to Greek Prose Composition," with notes and references to Kuhner's grammar. Late in May, 1845, near the close of his Junior year, he was forced by the progress of disease to break off his college course and leave for home,—to die. On his way he stopped in Boston long enough to read the proof of his book, then passing through the press; and he had the satisfaction to receive finished copies of it before his death.

He was a young man not only of high intellectual promise, but of as marked moral qualities. His attachments, too, partook of the warmth of his nature. His parting from college and instructors was a rending asunder of strong bands. After he reached home, his malady made steady and fatal progress. He died, at his father's house, in Claremont, Feb. 8th, 1846, of consumption, at the early age of 19 years and 9 months. In the words of his father: "His death was marvellously calm, peaceful and triumphant."

His knowledge of the Greek, it is believed, has had no parallel among the undergraduates of this College.]

CLASS OF 1847.

GILBERT LAFAYETTE PALMER.

Son of David P. and Mary (Wentworth) Palmer.

Born, Feb. 25, 1825, at Athens, Me., his only residence.

Prosecuted preparatory and Freshman studies at Bloomfield and Foxcroft Academies.

1844, Sept. Entered at opening of first term Sophomore year. He was one of the best scholars of an able and laborious class, and very ready and accurate in recitation. Well read in some departments of English literature, and especially fond of, and familiar with, the speeches and writings of Edmund Burke.

1847-49. Studied law, at Athens, under Eben'r Hutchinson (class of 1824).

1849-58. Admitted to the bar, he immediately commenced practice in Athens, and so continued till his death.

1852-55. Postmaster at Athens.

Died, March 14, 1858, at Athens, of consumption. He had been in poor health some five years previous to his death, and during this time often bled profusely from the lungs. Having attended Dec. term of court, at Norridgewock, he was confined to his house until his death.

Married, May 25, 1851, Miss Abby S. Hight, of Athens.

Child: Gustavus Lafayette, born 1852, at present living at Bangor with his mother, now Mrs. A. H. Cook.

THOMAS MILTON SYMONDS.

Was fitted for college at the Worcester County High School, Mass.

In college, a most diligent and exemplary student.

1847-50. Student in Newton Theological Institution.

1850, Nov. 6. Ordained as Home Missionary, at Salem St. Church, Reading. Sermon by R. E. Pattison, D. D., then Prof. at Newton.

1850-51. From Sept. 1, to April 30, taught and preached at Rock (Middleboro'), Mass.

1851, May 21. Settled at Green Bay, Wisconsin, and became pastor of a Baptist church, there organized on Sept. 11.

Died, July 4, 1852, of typhoid fever, at Green Bay.

Married, April 30, 1851, Miss Maria, daughter of Lendal P. Morton, of Rock, Mass. She is now wife of Rev. E. C. Mitchell (class of 1849), Prof. Sac. Lit., Shurtleff Coll., Ill.

"He was a man of remarkable tenderness of conscience, of devoted piety, of deep humility, of constant prayer, and strong faith." [J. A.]

AUGUSTUS EBENEZER TRAFTON.

Son of Dr. Charles and Elizabeth (Nowell) Trafton, and brother of Charles T. (class of 1843).

The father was a Trustee of the College from 1840 to 1851. Died July 4, 1855.

The son was born Oct. 24, 1827, at South Berwick, Me., his residence till graduation.

Prepared for college at the Academy in Kennebunk, Hall Roberts (class of 1836), Principal.

While a member of college, he was irreproachable in habits and conduct, and manifested a most amiable disposition.

After graduating, he settled at Great Falls, N. H., in the business of a druggist.

Died, July 20, 1852, of consumption, at his father's house in So. Berwick.

Married, Dec. 4, 1851, Miss Amelia Shackford, of Berwick.

CLASS OF 1848.

JACOB SMITH MARSHALL.

Son of Hon. Alfred and Lydia (Brackett) Marshall.

The father was M. C., 1841-43, Collector of Customs at Belfast, 1846-49, and for some years General of Militia.

The son was born May 26, 1828, in China, Me., the residence of the family to the present time, except three years spent at Belfast.

Fitted for college at China Academy, under Henry Paine (class of 1823), and John B. Foster (class of 1843), Principals.

After graduation, he engaged in trade with his father, at China.

Postmaster of China for a time.

Died, Aug. 21, 1860, very suddenly, of congestion of the brain, in China. Having dined in his usual health, he lay down upon a lounge, and in a few minutes died.

He did not marry.

WILLIAM NELSON TITUS.

Son of David and Rhoda (Rounds) Titus.

Born, Oct. 27, 1823, at Monmouth, Me., his residence while member of college.

Took preparatory course at Monmouth Academy, under Nath'l T. True (M. D., B. C., 1846).

1848-51. After leaving college, studied law under direction of Ezra Abbot (B. C., 1830), of Richmond, Me., and Seth May, of Winthrop, teaching at times, meanwhile.

1851. Admitted to Kennebec bar.

1852. Opened office in Alna, and practiced law there till a few weeks before his death.

Died, July 20, 1854, of consumption, at his father's house in Monmouth.

Married, Sept., 1853, in New York City, to Miss Martha J., daughter of Jeremiah Jewett, of Alna, Me.

A son was born, Jan. 12, 1855. The widow lives in Alna.

CLASS OF 1849.

THOMAS FLINT BARTON.

Eldest son of Crosby and Sybil Ware (Patten) Barton.

Born, Dec. 15, 1825, in Sidney, Me., his residence till graduation.

Prepared for college chiefly at the district school in his father's neighborhood.

In scholarship, he was one of the first of a class that "marked" very high. He excelled in all the studies of the course, but had special love and aptitude for the classics.

1849-52. Studied medicine with N. R. Boutelle (M. D., Jeff. Med. Coll., 1847), of Waterville, and Dr. Asa Danforth of Norway, attending one course of medical lectures at Dart. Coll., and a second at Jeff. Med. Coll., Philadelphia, where he received degree of M. D., March 6, 1852.

1852, Aug.—'65. Settled in highly successful practice, at Jefferson, Me.

1865, Jan. Removed to Oldtown, and there continued practice of his profession, till prostrated by his last sickness.

Died, Feb. 7, 1867, at Oldtown, of consumption, inherited from his mother, who, as well as three of her four children, died of that disease. Through college life and his subsequent years, he was so delicate in health that only by the most judicious self-management was he able to do his daily duties, which were, however, always performed with the most scrupulous exactness and fidelity.

Married, Nov. 24, 1859, Miss Mary A., daughter of Hon. Henry Richardson, of Oldtown, Me.

Children: Henry Crosby, born Sept., 1860.

Kittie, born Aug., 1862; died, Nov., 1864.

Mrs. Barton was married, Nov., 1869, to Mr. E. R. Alford, of Oldtown.

Dr. Barton's mind was clear, comprehensive and well-balanced. He was one of the most thoroughly honest and pure of men. Equally sound in head and heart, his character was read intuitively. The high esteem accorded to his quiet, unobtrusive nature, was the spontaneous tribute to solid worth. Feeble as he was in body, he kept up his youthful studies, purely from the love of them. Year by year he read the Latin authors, and the Greek Testament was his daily companion.

HENRY SMITH DOWNS.

Son of Dea. James and Anna (Meador) Downs.

Born, Feb. 19, 1822, in Alfred, Me. In Dec. of the same year, the family removed to Mercer, which was his legal residence till close of student life.

Was fitted for college at Bloomfield Academy, chiefly by Stephen Coburn (class of 1839).

He was a good scholar, and maintained a high Christian character throughout his course.

1849-52. Student at Bangor Theol. Seminary.

1852, Sept. 29. Ordained, and installed as pastor of the Cong. church in Norridgewock, and held this, his only pastorate, till he was, on account of failing health, dismissed, July, 1858.

1859, March. Removed to Auburn, where, an invalid, he resided till his decease.

Died, Nov. 25, 1860, at Auburn, of pulmonary consumption.

Married, Feb. 4, 1853, Miss Caroline W., daughter of John Stockbridge of Byron, Me.

Children: Two sons, both of whom died before their father.

Mrs. Downs was married, a few years since, to Mr. Strout of Auburn.

An able, earnest and successful preacher.

WILLIAM HOIT HUMPHREY.

Sixth son of Benjamin and Mary C. (Rice) Humphrey.

Born, Dec. 2, 1823, in North Yarmouth, Me., his residence while a student.

Pursued preparatory studies at North Yarmouth Academy, under instruction of Allen H. Weld (Y. C., 1834).

In college, Mr. Humphrey maintained high standing in scholarship and character.

1850-52. Student at Newton Theological Institution, but did not complete course.

1852, Aug. 15. Began to preach with Baptist church in Richmond, Me., but was not ordained as its pastor till March 1, 1854. At close of six years of successful labor here, he resigned his pastorate, Aug. 1, 1858.

1858, Oct. 24. Entered upon labors as pastor of Granville St. Baptist church, Halifax, N. S.

1862, Apr. Forced by disease of throat and lungs to suspend pulpit labor altogether, contrary to the earnest remonstrances of his people, he resigned his pastorate in Halifax, and, June, removed to Minn., for change of climate.

Sept. 1. Finding his health greatly improved, he accepted the place of Superintendent of schools of Minneapolis, and that of Principal of the High School.

1863, Oct. 1. Became pastor of church in Hastings, Minn., and labored, as elsewhere, with abundant success. At close of second year, failing health prompted him to tender his resignation, which was not accepted, and his pastorate closed only with his life.

Died, Dec. 6, 1865, of consumption, at Hastings.

Married, July 8, 1852, Miss Emma D., daughter of Nehemiah Getchell, of Waterville.

He left four children. Mrs. Humphrey became, in 1869, wife of Dea. J. F. Marsters, of St. John, N. B.

ALBION PARRIS OAKES.

Son of William and Mary (Weymouth) Oakes, and brother of Abner (class of 1847).

Born, Aug. 14, 1824, in Sangerville, Me., his residence till graduation.

Prepared for college at Foxcroft Academy.

As a scholar, took high standing in the Mathematics.

After leaving college, he was for a time Principal of Academy at Waldoboro', Me.

Studied law at Waterville, with Timo. Boutelle (H. U., 1800), and in Waldoboro', with John H. Kennedy.

1852 (?). Admitted to Lincoln bar, and opened office at Waldoboro', where he continued in successful practice till his last sickness.

Died, June 21, 1859, of consumption, at Waldoboro'.

Married, Oct. 15, 1853, Miss Ella, daughter of Joseph Clark, of Waldoboro'.

He left a daughter, now living with Mrs. Oakes, at Waldoboro'.

1853, June. Ordained as pastor of Baptist church in Belfast, Me.; sermon by Rev. E. B. Eddy. This relation he held till his death, discharging the duties of the pastorate with great acceptance and fidelity.

Died, Nov. 11, 1854, of typhoid fever, after a sickness of four weeks, at his father's house in Beverly.

Married, Oct., 1853, Miss Harriet J. F. Bullen, of New Sharon, Me., sister of George (class of 1853).

CLASS OF 1851.

ALBION BYRON CLARK.

Son of John and Sarah (Hinkley) Clark.

Born, March 24, 1826, in New Sharon, Me., his residence during college course.

He was fitted for college at Farmington and Waterville Academies, at the latter under James H. Hanson (class of 1842).

One of the very best scholars of his class.

1851, Sept. Took charge, as Principal, of Shelburne Falls Academy, Mass., and taught with great favor and usefulness till he left to enter at Newton.

1854, March. Entered Newton Theological Institution, and there studied till summer of 1855.

1855, Sept. 12. Ordained as pastor of Baptist Church in Skowhegan (then Bloomfield), where he labored for three and a half years very successfully.

1859, Spring. Compelled, by ill-health, to lay aside pastoral duties, he removed to New York in May, and entered upon an Agency of Am. Bap. Pub. Soc., in which he remained until next date.

1863, Jan. 1. Accepting call to pastorate in Columbia, Cal., he sailed for the Pacific coast, with the hope that a more genial climate might restore his shattered system. Commenced the labors of his new position in Feb., but, at the end of three months, was taken down with fever, before close of which, inflammation of the peritoneum set in. His disease was exceedingly distressing, and, as it almost wholly checked digestion, to its agonies were added the pangs of hunger. He remained an almost helpless invalid till death.

1865, April. Greatly longing to die among the people of his first charge, he was brought to Maine.

Died, Sept. 9, 1865, of peritonitis, at Skowhegan.

Married, Aug. 29, 1855, to Miss Emily M., daughter of Rev. John Billings, of Mt. Vernon, from 1822 to 1825 a Theological student of the college, and, from 1840 to 1843, a Trustee. Died, Dec., 1864.

SABINE EMERY.

Son of Henry Tilton and Mercy E. (Stover) Emery.
Born, Feb. 8, 1834, in Eastport, Me., which was his residence during the collegiate course.
1851. Entered the preparatory department of the University at Lewisburg, Penn., where, and, 1853-54, at Waterville Academy, under James H. Hanson (class of 1842), he completed his fit for college.
1858. After leaving college, he taught for one or two years, first as Principal of Bloomfield Academy, and subsequently of the High School in his native town.
1861, Sept. Entered the army as Captain of Co. A, 9th Reg. Me. Vols. He was rapidly promoted to the ranks of Major, Lieut. Col., and, May 27th, 1863, Colonel, in the same regiment, of which he held command till his resignation of the Colonelcy, May 25, 1864.
1861, Nov. 7. Present with the regiment at the capture of Hilton Head, Port Royal entrance, S. C.
1862, Mar. 4—1863, Jan. 17. With 9th, on garrison and picket duty at Fernandina, Fla.
1863, Jan. 17—June 24. On out-post duty, with regiment, at Hilton Head.
July 11—Sept. 6. Before Fort Wagner, Morris' Island, Charleston Harbor, till its evacuation on the latter date. Here the Reg. was one of three that, July 11th, assaulted the Fort. On the 18th the 9th was the centre of the assaulting columns engaged in the unsuccessful attack of that date. At this time he was seriously wounded in the leg by a minie ball, and received a contused wound of the left breast from the fragment of a shell. Copious hemorrhage of the lungs followed, from which he never fully recovered.
1863, Oct. 30—1864, Feb. 10. The 9th was stationed on Black Island, between Morris' and James', Charleston Harbor.
1864. May 25. Resigned his commission, and was honorably discharged.

As a soldier, Col. Emery displayed a fearlessness for which he had been from his earliest years remarkable. He seemed destitute of the sense of danger, and while this quality made him a most daring and brilliant leader, it sometimes brought upon him censure for rashness. Previously to his military life, he had prosecuted to some extent the study of the law, with Hon. Stephen Coburn (class of 1839), at Skowhegan, which he completed, on return from the army.

1864, Oct. 22. Admitted to the bar at Bangor.

1865. Early this year he removed to Maryland for the benefit of a milder climate than that of Maine, and was, Apr. 1st, admitted to practice in the courts of Maryland. He opened an office in Baltimore, where he continued to reside until his death.

Died, March 24, 1868, of lingering consumption, at Baltimore.

Married, Oct. 26, 1862, Miss Louisa M. Flint, of Winslow, Me., who, with her two children, survives.

WILLIAM TRIPP PARKER.

Son of Peter and Sarah (Hersom) Parker.

Born, Oct. 11, 1839, at Farmington, Me.

He was prepared for college at the Maine Wesleyan Seminary, Kent's Hill, Rev. Henry P. Torsey, Principal.

Residence while a member of college, Kent's Hill.

1858-59. Principal of High School, Ellsworth, Me.

1859-60. Prof. of Mathematics, in Bethel Coll., Russellville, Ky.

1860-61. Completed study of law with Eugene Hale, of Ellsworth, where he was admitted to the bar, in the latter year, and entered practice.

1862, Aug. 21. Entered military service as First Lieut. Co. C., First Reg. Heavy Artillery, and was afterwards promoted Capt. Co. L.

In Adj. Gen. Hodsdon's Report for 1864-65, is the following: "He was an officer of promise. All witnesses bear testimony to the fact that he was one of the bravest of the gallant men with whom he fought."

His regiment was engaged in some of the bloodiest battles of the war.

1864, May 19. In the battle of Spottsylvania, he received three successive wounds, in the leg, hip and abdomen. From the latter wound, he died during the following night.

Married, Aug. 10, 1862, Miss Margaret W., daughter of Nathl. A. Joy, of Ellsworth. She married, 1870, Mr. Drake, of Belfast.

Left no children.

HAMPTON DUNREATH PLUMMER SMALL.

Son of Abner and Mary Ann B. (Randall) Small.

Born, May 31, 1833, in Gardiner, Me.

Pursued preparatory and Freshman studies, partly at Waterville Academy, under tuition of James H. Hanson (class of 1842), and in part, with Andrew Walsh, of Kent's Hill.

1855, Sept. Entered college at beginning of Sophomore year.

Residence, while student in college, Mt. Vernon.

1858-62. Taught school in several places, as Winthrop, Dresden and Dixmont, and begun to study law by himself at home.

Died, unmarried, Aug. 23, 1862, at Mt. Vernon, of consumption.

CLASS OF 1859.

ALEXANDER FULLER.

Son of Alexander and Rebecca S. (Spring) Fuller.

Born, Dec. 28, 1838, in West Sandwich, Mass.

The family removed, 1849, to Waterville, which was their home till after the son's graduation.

He was fitted for college at Waterville Academy, chiefly under the instruction of James H. Hanson (class of 1842).

He maintained a high rank in scholarship. His character and disposition, as manifested in college, may well be represented in the words of his roommate at the Theol. Sem., who speaks of him, as "most gentle, full of Christian spirit, genial,—one of the purest, truest and most thoroughly lovely men I ever had the good fortune to know intimately."

1859-62. Student in Bangor Theol. Seminary, graduating, after full course, July 31, 1862.

1862-63. Supplied pulpit of Cong. Church in North Carver, Mass., for some months.

1863, Oct. 28. Ordained as pastor of Fifth Cong. Ch. in Plymouth (Chiltonville), Mass., and held this relation till death.

"He loved his people out of a pure heart, with love unfeigned."—That love was returned in full measure.

Died, Dec. 5, 1869, at his father's house, in Kingston, Mass., from an affection of the brain. His last sickness, by which he was laid aside for more than a year and a half, was attended with great suffering, and, at times, with almost total blindness.

He was not married.

He was of the eighth generation in descent from Samuel Fuller, one of the "Mayflower Pilgrims," and their beloved physician. Alexander died near the spot where his ancestor had died.

CLASS OF 1860.

WILLIAM WALLACE WEST.

Son of James M. and Ann N. (Soule) West.

Born, Oct. 17, 1839, in Waterville, his legal residence through life.

He was prepared for college at Waterville Academy, under the tuition of James H. Hanson (class of 1842), and, after removal of Mr. Hanson to Eastport, under that of George B. Gow (class of 1852).

He showed in college, and afterwards, decided fondness and aptitude for the study of the natural sciences.

1860. Immediately after graduating, he resumed, in the office of Dr. N. R. Boutelle, of Waterville, the study of medicine, already begun during the long winter vacation of his Senior year.

1860-61, Nov. to March. Attended lectures at Grove Street Medical College, Boston.

1861, Sept. 9. Left home as Hospital Steward of 8th Reg. Me. Vols. He was for some weeks with the Reg., at Annapolis, Md.

Oct. 29. Sailed from Fortress Monroe in the great naval expedition under Com. Dupont, Gen. Sherman commanding the land forces.

Nov. 7. Present at the bombardment and capture of Forts Walker and Beauregard, Hilton Head, Port Royal entrance, S. C.

Nov. 9. Appointed Assistant Surgeon of 8th Me.

Unfavorable symptoms in respect to his health had appeared for some months before he left Maine. These grew more aggravated, and, in Nov., he had cough and the usual premonitions of consumption.

Dec. 17. Health still failing, he sailed for home on leave of absence, by steamer Atlantic, for New York.

Died, unmarried, Feb. 5, 1862, of quick consumption, at his father's house in Waterville.

A young man who bade fair to attain high place in his chosen profession.

CLASS OF 1862.

ARETUS GUSTAVUS BARKER.

Son of John and Selina D. (Little) Barker.

Born, Oct. 23, 1835, in Lovell, Me., his residence during his college course.

Completed preparation for college at Waterville Academy, under the instruction of Isaac S. Hamblen (class of 1858).

He was a diligent and successful student, of exemplary conduct and spotless character.

1862, Nov. Took charge, as Principal, of "Masonic Charitable Institute," in Effingham, N. H., in which capacity he labored successfully till his death.

He carried on the study of medicine, while at Effingham, and was nearly ready for graduation at a Medical College, and for entrance upon practice.

Died, Apr. 11, 1867, at Effingham, of tuberculous deposit upon the brain, accompanied by paralysis.

Married, Aug. 20, 1864, Miss Exa L. Drake, of Effingham.

Child: A son, 17 months old at his father's decease.

FREDERIC HALE.

Son of James S. and Betsey (Staples) Hale.

Born, Oct. 21, 1839, in Turner, Me., which was his legal residence, while he was in college.

He pursued the preparatory studies at the Turner Grammar School, and at the Wesleyan Seminary, Kent's Hill.

On graduating, he began immediately the study of the law, in the office of his brother, Eugene Hale, of Ellsworth.

1863, Oct. Admitted to practice, he entered at once upon the business of his profession, as partner of his brother.

1865, Aug. 9th. Spoke, at Commencement, for the Master's Degree. His oration made a marked impression upon his audience, and elicited distinguished praise.

Died, May 6, 1868, in Woodstock, Vt., of tubercular consumption.

He was not married.

Mr. Hale was studious and successful as a lawyer, and is thought to have shortened his days by undue application. He was a man of decided talent, tenacious of purpose, upright and steadfast in character.

ARCH DORILLOUS LEAVITT.

Born, July 15, 1840, in Turner, Me., the residence of the family while the son was a member of college.

With little aid from teachers, he mastered the preparatory studies at home.

He was one of the very best scholars of his class, and in character showed himself to be thoroughly noble, pure, conscientious and manly.

1862, July. Upon the final examination of his class, five weeks before commencement, he and two others of his class at once undertook to enlist a company for a regiment then raising. Speedily successful in their effort, the three classmates were, the same month, made, A. D. Leavitt, Capt., W. E. Brooks, 1st Lieut., and W. A. Stevens, 2d Lieut. of Co. E, 16th Me. Vols.

Aug. 13. The three performed no parts in the Commencement exercises, at which, however, they received their Diplomas, clad in the Federal uniform.

Dec. 13. Present at the battle of Fredericksburg.

1863, Jan. Promoted to be Major, and in that capacity participated with his regiment in battles of Chancellorsville, May 2 and 3, Gettysburg, July 3, Mine Run, Nov. 29, Wilderness, May 5 to 7, 1864, as well as others of less note.

At the beginning of the battle of Gettysburg, he was at Washington, sick, but hearing of the action, asked leave to join his regiment, and reached the field on the last day of the great fight.

1864, May 12. On this date (24th in Obit., Gen. Hodsdon's Rep., 1864-5, vol. 1, p. 409) he was mortally wounded at the battle of Laurel Hill.

Died, unmarried, May 30, 1864, from his wounds, at Douglas Hospital, Washington.

A heroic soldier, a true and honest man.

[In all the military Reports his first name is given as Archibald. This is wrong, the true name being Arch, as his family testify, in answer to special inquiry.]

WILLIAM AMORY STEVENS.

Son of Whiting A. F. and Mary (Clark) Stevens.

Born, March 31, 1839, in Bath, Me.

When he was but a few weeks old, his parents removed to Waterville, which has been the residence of the family to the present time.

Preparatory studies pursued under tuition of Isaac Hamblen (class of 1858), Principal of Waterville Academy.

Scholarship throughout course of a high order, and conduct unexceptionable. The circumstances of his graduation, and of his entrance into military life, already stated in notice of his class-mate, Major Leavitt, need not be here recounted.

1862, Aug. 14th. Mustered with his regiment into the U. S. service, at Augusta, the day after graduation.

Dec. 13th. Severely wounded at the battle of Fredericksburg.

1863, Feb. 5. Commissioned First Lieut., in place of Brooks, promoted.

Mar. 26. Commissioned Captain, vice Brooks, discharged.

July. Taken prisoner on first day of the battle of Gettysburg, and, at its close, paroled.

1864, June. After escaping unharmed in the terrible battles by which Gen. Grant made his way from the crossing of the Rapidan, May 3d, through the "Wilderness" to and across the James, Capt. Stevens was, Sunday morning, the 19th, while sitting in conversation behind breastworks, before Petersburg, shot by a rebel marksman. A large artery of the neck was severed, and he died of hemorrhage in less than an hour from the time when he was wounded.

EDWIN CLARK, brother of William, born in Waterville, Sept. 19, 1842, and prepared for college by Charles H. Smith (class of 1856), now Gen. Smith, and by Chas. F. Baldwin (class of 1858), was a member of the class of 1863. Having nearly completed his Junior year, he enlisted, July, 1862, at the same time with William. He was made Sergeant, then Orderly Sergeant of his brother's company (E. 16th Reg.), and afterwards Sergeant Major of the regiment. Taken prisoner at Gettysburg, he was for two months confined at Belle Isle, Richmond. Having made a short visit to his home, after his release, he left, Oct. 10, '63, to join his regiment. With his brother, he shared in the great battles fought by the Army of the Potomac in the campaigns of '63 and '64, was present to cheer the dying moments of William, and was himself shot instantly dead, by a bullet through the brain, in the struggle for possession of the Weldon Railway, known as the battle of Reams' Station, Aug. 18, 1864. He was a young man of good mind and scholarship, and of upright character.

Abundant and honorable testimony has been borne to the soldierly qualities of the brothers. Their remains were brought to Waterville, for interment.

CLASS OF 1864.

EDWARD CLARENDON LITTLEFIELD.

Second and youngest son of Ivory and Eunice (Hobbs) Littlefield.

Born, Sept. 4, 1844, in Chesterville, Me., his home till close of life.

He completed his preparatory studies at Turner and Livermore, under several teachers.

- 1861, May. Entered college at opening of third term, Freshman year. He was marked from his earliest years by sweetness of disposition, peculiar thoughtfulness and seriousness, and by facility in acquiring knowledge. In college he did not rouse himself to severe effort till near the close of his course, but his instructors never doubted that he was possessed of talent. He excelled as a writer, and at graduation won applause by the ability with which he performed his part.
- 1864, Oct. Having had the ministry in view, from childhood, he entered Newton Theol. Institution, where, as here, he secured the respect and confidence of all with whom he became associated. In November, he was attacked by fever of a very malignant type, which obstinately resisted the best medical skill, and soon resulted in his dissolution.
- Died, unmarried, Nov. 22, 1864, of typhoid fever, in Roxbury, Mass.

CLASS OF 1869.

WARREN AUGUSTUS SMITH.

Son of Edward G. and Elizabeth B. (Lord) Smith.

Born, March 13, 1847, in Litchfield, Me., his legal residence until his death.

His studies in preparation for college were completed at Waterville Academy, under John W. Lamb (class of 1855), and Augustus D. Small (class of 1865), successively.

As a student he was, in college, earnest and successful, always attending to his proper work. He persisted, to the last, in manly effort, although, during the Junior and Senior years, he was in such a state of health as would have been made by most young men an excuse for inaction.

1869. Having graduated, Aug. 11, he commenced work, on the 23d, without vacation, as Principal of the Academy in Corinna. On Tuesday evening, the 31st, he retired to rest, apparently in his usual health. On the following morning, Sept. 1, he was found dead in his bed, having died, it was thought, very soon after retiring and without a struggle.

His case was pronounced by the neighboring physicians, after autopsy, to be one of "heart disease," a term which often saves the confession of entire ignorance of the cause of death.

ARRIVAL OF DR. CHAPLIN IN WATERVILLE.

Information received since the notice of Mr. Procter's life was printed requires that the statements made in the paragraph (p. 7) beginning with the date, "1818, July," should be modified.

As a summary of what is at present known to the compiler respecting the coming of Dr. Chaplin, and the circumstances attending it, as well as of facts and dates relating to the Theological Department, sections C and D are added.

1817, Oct. 1. At a meeting of the Trustees of "Maine Lit. and Theol. Institution," held in Bath, it was voted to "locate" the Institution in Waterville, on certain conditions.

1818, Feb. 25. At a meeting held in Brunswick, Rev. Jeremiah Chaplin was appointed Professor of Theology, and it was voted "that Instruction commence on the first of May next."

1818, May 12. Rev. Otis Briggs, Secy. of Trustees, writes to his brother, Avery Briggs, "Elder Chaplin has not accepted his appointment, and we have fears he will not."

1818, June 23. Mr. Briggs writes to his brother, "Elder Chaplin has accepted his appointment, and is hourly expected."

In the last week of June, or the first week of July, probably the former, Mr. Chaplin (he was made D. D. in 1819, by So. Caro. Coll.) reached Waterville, having with him his family, a part of his Theological class, and Mr. Marsh (and family), of Salem, who had been engaged as Steward of the Seminary.

The party, in the words of Prof. John O'B. Chaplin, "came from Beverly to Augusta in a schooner, and there took a long-boat for Waterville. * * On landing they were met by a body of citizens of Waterville, and Esquire Boutelle gave an address of welcome, to which father responded. The family were then taken in a carriage to the Wood's House." (Letter of July 13, 1870.) Here, shortly after, the exercises of the Theological department were begun. The Literary department was not opened nominally until the coming of Prof. Avery Briggs, about Oct. 1, 1819.

Rev. Otis Briggs' words in his letter of June 23, 1818, above quoted, establish the date of Dr. Chaplin's arrival, more nearly than does any information yet obtained from other sources. They are confirmed by statements of Rev. Wm. Leverett (Letter of July 20, 1870), for which see section D.

(D.)

THE EARLIER THEOLOGICAL STUDENTS.

In his letter of May 12, 1818, Rev. Otis Briggs says: "If brother Chaplin comes, fifteen scholars come with him and, with those in this section, would make a respectable number in the very commencement of tuition."

From a list of names submitted to Rev. John Wakefield, of Rockland, one of the "Danvers class," he selects the following as those of the persons who were students of Dr. Chaplin at Danvers, and came with him, or soon after his arrival. Prof. J. O'B. Chaplin is not, at short notice, able to name other members of the original class, if there were such, but has "a fresh recollection of the names mentioned." In connection with the names are given some facts and dates, gathered from various sources:

Mr. Wakefield writes, July 8th, 1870, "My impression is that the whole number of Theological scholars was thirteen, but I cannot recollect any more names" [than the eleven given above].

Michael Carlton, of Bluehill, Me., stood upon the river bank, and saw the landing of the party from Danvers. He was awaiting their arrival, and joined the class at once.

Henry Paine, of Amherst, Mass., came late in the fall of 1818, "after the ground had frozen" (Mrs. Paine), and entered the Theol. class.

Sam'l Fogg (born in Raymond, N. H., Mar. 9, 1787, died at Monmouth, Me., Oct. 18, 1868), was one of the first three who graduated from the Theol. Dep. He came soon after the arrival of Dr. C. It is by no means certain that he was not one of the Danvers class. Adding to the eleven Mr. Carlton and either Mr. Fogg or Mr. Paine (Mr. Fogg by preference, as probably here sooner than Mr. Paine), the number thirteen will be made up as that of the original class at the opening of the seminary, and will accord with Mr. Wakefield's remembrance.

It should here be noted that all of the eleven named above did not arrive at the same time with Dr. Chaplin. Mr. Wakefield says that he stopped on the way, at Bath, to visit his relatives. Rev. Wm. Leverett writes, July 20, 1870, that "Hadley Procter, Henry Stanwood and Wm. Leverett left Boston, early

* Mr. Leverett, fitted for college and entered, on its opening, as Freshman, in the class of 1824. In the first term Sophomore year, Oct., 1821, he left on account of sickness, and, April, 1822, entered Brown University, where he graduated, 1824.

† Became a Methodist, close of 1818. Settled in Camden, Hallowell, Winthrop, and probably other towns in Me. Lived last 15 or 20 years of his life in Boston.

§ So in Wat. Church Records. Was it not Stratford?

in July, by a vessel for Hallowell, and found Dr. Chaplin at Waterville on our arrival there." These four then were not of the long-boat party. Stephen Lovell was, and his relation of his reminiscences at Commencement Dinner, in 1854, will be remembered by some.

Other students came from time to time. Among the earliest of those of them who remained Theological students, and never entered the College, were Sam'l Cook, of Fairfield, Joshua Eveleth, Clark Lillybridge, of Stafford, Conn. (who became a physician, and took the degree of M. D. at Bowd. Coll., 1824), John Atwood and John C. Welch.

When Prof. Avery Briggs came to Waterville, as he states, "about Oct. 1st, 1819" (Letter of Feb., 1869, to G. C. Fisher), he found "some 30 or 40" students, of whom a considerable number were never members of the Theological class, but were gathered in anticipation of the formal opening of the "Literary" department. Thus Boardman, not a professor of religion till July, 1820, came in May, 1819, and, with other candidates for the literary department, re-ited in part to Dr. Chaplin, and in part to members of the class in Theology.

From the first Triennial of the College, published in 1825, a copy of which, —the only one known to be in existence,—has been recently received from Benj. Hobart, Esq., of the class of 1825, the following list is copied. It is to be regarded as the catalogue of the graduates of the Theological department, up to date of its publication, since the names of those who did not complete the course are not given. Thus John Wakefield, who left in the fall of 1819, and Willard Kimball, who, from ill health, left a little later, do not appear in the list, which, with its heading, is as follows :

"Nomina eorum qui operam dederunt Theologiæ in Schola Collegio annexa.

OREN TRACY."

The next Triennial known to have been published, was issued in 1834. The Theological Department having then become extinct (the resignation of the Theological Professorship by Dr. Chaplin, who held it a second time, July 23, 1829, to July 24, 1832, marking its actual, not nominal, death), no further traces of it, nor of its graduates, afterwards appeared in the Triennials.

N. B. Later information shows that E. H. Libby, class of 1852, died of consumption complicated with other disorders. His case is entered in section B. of Appendix as one of the 40 instances of consumption.
